

Contents

Foreword: Syntheses of a Critical Anthropology, by Matti Bunzl	vii
Preface to the Reprint Edition	xxxiii
Preface and Acknowledgments	xxxvii
Chapter 1: Time and the Emerging Other	1
From Sacred to Secular Time: The Philosophical Traveler	2
From History to Evolution: The Naturalization of Time	11
Some Uses of Time in Anthropological Discourse	21
Taking Stock: Anthropological Discourse and Denial of Coevalness	25
Chapter 2: Our Time, Their Time, No Time: Coevalness Denied	37
Circumventing Coevalness: Cultural Relativity	38
Preempting Coevalness: Cultural Taxonomy	52
Chapter 3: Time and Writing About the Other	71
Contradiction: Real or Apparent	72
Temporalization: Means or End?	74
Time and Tense: The Ethnographic Present	80

vi Contents

*In My Time: Ethnography and the Autobiographic
Past* 87

Politics of Time: The Temporal Wolf in Taxonomic Sheep's Clothing 97

Chapter 4: The Other and the Eye: Time and the Rhetoric of Vision 105

Method and Vision 106

Space and Memory 109

Logic as Arrangement: Knowledge Visible 114

Vide et Impera: The Other as Object 118

"The Symbol Belongs to the Orient": Symbolic Anthropology in Hegel's Aesthetic 123

The Other as Icon: The Case of "Symbolic Anthropology" 131

Chapter 5: Conclusions 143

Retrospect and Summary 144

Issues for Debate 152

Coevalness: Points of Departure 156

Postscript: The Other Revisited 167

Notes 187

References Cited 203

Index 219