

Bird Relics

GRIEF AND VITALISM IN THOREAU

Branka Arsic

Harvard University Press

Cambridge, Massachusetts

London, England 2016

Contents

Abbreviations ix

Introduction: On Affirmative Reading, or The Lesson of the Chickadees 1

Part I Dyonisia, 467 BC: The Mythology of Mourning

Introduction: Perpetual Grief and the Example of the Fish Hawks 29

Literal Sounds 41

Homer's Music Box 49

Aeschylus's Paean 58

Cemeteries of the Brain 71

Pindar's Doubles 77

Odysseus, the Lyric, and the Call of the Dead 86

The Sound Dream 106

Coda: Melville's Seafowls 109

Part II Cambridge, Massachusetts, circa 1837: The Science of Life

Introduction: Harvard Vitalism and the Way of the Loon 117

Birds 143

Fossils 163

Stones 187

Photographs 213

	Swamps, Leaves, Galls: A Treatise on Decay	223
	Coda: Antigone's Birds	244
Part III	Walden Pond, Concord, Massachusetts, 1845: Epistemology of Change
	Introduction: On Embodied Knowledge and the Deliberation of the Crow	251
	Toward Things as They Are	258
	Thinking with Geological Velocity	262
	How to Greet a Tree?	266
	Contemplating Matter	272
	The Noontime of the Mind	277
	Thinking with the Body 1: Walking	281
	Thinking with the Body 2: Sitting	293
	Personhood: Who or What?	311
	Coda: Benjamin's Seagulls	318
Part IV	Ossossané Village, Ontario, 1636: Acts of Recollecting
	Introduction: The Ethics of Communal Mourning and the Flight of the Turtle Dove	325
	Deathways of Things	330
	Ragged Fragments and Vital Relics	338
	The Huron-Wendat Feast of the Dead	357
	Coda: Pythagoras's Birds	363
Appendix I	Freud and Benjamin on Nature in Mourning	369
Appendix II	On Thoreau's Grave	385
	Notes	389
	Acknowledgments	443
	Index	447