

TABLE OF CONTENTS

- 7 Acknowledgements
- 9 Introduction
Caroline van Eck
- 19 Sculptures in Print
The »Galleria Giustiniana« as Exemplar and Agent of Taste
Erin Downey
- 35 The Amsterdam Ivories of Francis van Bossuit
Reception and Transformation in the Eighteenth Century
Frits Scholten
- 49 La sculpture comme source historique
Les dessins de la collection de François-Roger de Gaignières (1642–1715)
Anne Ritz-Guilbert
- 65 Sculpture in Pieces
Peter Paul Rubens's »Miracles of Francis Xavier«
and the Visual Tradition of Broken Idols
Anna C. Knaap

85	Medusa's Terror in the Amsterdam Town Hall How to Look at Sculptures in the Dutch Golden Age Stijn Bussels
103	»Admirari vel deridere« Calvinistic Approaches to Classical Sculpture in the Netherlands Ruurd Halbertsma
115	Allegory, Ornament, and Prehistory's »Secret Influence« D'Hancarville versus Winckelmann Hans Christian Hönes
127	Baron D'Hancarville's »Recherches« on the Evolution of Sculpture Submerged Emblems and the Collective Self Tomas Macsotay
145	»Ut Sculptura Theatrum« On the Relation between Theatre and Sculpture in the Late Eighteenth Century Bram van Oostveldt
159	Plaster »versus« Marble Wilhelm and Caroline von Humboldt and the Agency of Antique Sculpture Pascal Griener
177	How Does an Idol enter a Museum? Immersion and Aesthetic Autonomy at the Musée Charles X in the Louvre Caroline van Eck
195	La présentation du »paragone« dans les dispositifs muséaux au XIX ^e siècle Cecilia Hurley
207	Idoles de l'île de Nias Origines d'un Entichement Muséal Thomas Beaufile
225	Notes
255	Bibliography
281	Contributors
285	Index
291	Picture Credits