

Spectacular Science, Technology and Superstition in the Age of Shakespeare

Edited by Sophie Chiari and Mickaël
Popelard

EDINBURGH
University Press

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
Textual Note	vi
Notes on Contributors	vii
Introduction	1
Part I. Popular Beliefs
1. The 'Science' of Astrology in Shakespeare's Sonnets, Romeo and Juliet and King Lear François Laroque	29
2. Staging Devils and Witches: Had Shakespeare Read Reginald Scot's The Discoverie of Witchcraft ? Pierre Kapitaniak	43
Part II. Healing and Improving
3. 'Remedies for Life': Curing Hysterica Passto in Shakespeare's Othello , Macbeth and The Winter's Tale Sélima Lejri	67
4. 'More, I prithee, more': Melancholy, Musical Appetite and Medical Discourse in Shakespeare's Twelfth Night Pierre Iselin	85
5. Saving Perfection from the Alchemists: Shakespeare's Use of Alchemy Margaret Jones-Davies	99
Part III. Knowledge and (Re)Discoveries
6. Of Mites and Motes: Shakespearean Readings of Epicurean Science Jonathan Pollock	119

7. Shakespeare's Alhazen: Love's Labour's Lost and the History of Optics Anne-Valérie Dulac	133
8. Shakespeare's Montaigne: Maps and Books in The Tempest Frank Lestringant Translated by Sophie Chiari	147
9. Unlimited Science: The Endless Transformation of Nature in Bacon and Shakespeare's The Tempest Mickaël Popelard	171
 Part IV. Mechanical Tropes
10. 'Vat is the clock, Jack?': Shakespeare and the Technology of Time Sophie Chiari	197
11. 'Wheels have been set in motion': Geocentrism and Relativity in Tom Stoppard's Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead Liliane Campos	221
Coda: Scepticism and the Spectacular – On Shakespeare in an Age of Science Carla Mazzio	237
 Bibliography	 245
Index	271