

---

---

CONTENTS

---

Chapter 1 INTRODUCTION: THE PSYCHOLOGY OF RELIGION IN A CHANGING WORLD 1

---

- A Misleading Name 3
  - A Reified Object 3
  - Tradition and Faith: A New Conceptual Framework 4
- Spirituality: A Contemporary Alternative 5
  - An Emergent Model 5
- The New Religious Pluralism 7
  - Postmodernism 9
- The New Pluralism in Contemporary Psychology 10
  - Postmodernism in Psychology 10
- Intimations of a Postmodern Psychology of Religion 11
  - Historical and Functional Continuities Between Psychology and Religion 12
- Objections to the Psychology of Religion 13
  - Objections from the Religious Standpoint 13
  - Objections from the Psychological Standpoint 15
- A Look Ahead 18
  - Objective Approaches 18
  - Depth-Psychological Approaches 19
  - Humanistic Approaches 19

---

Chapter 2 THE FORMAL BEGINNINGS: THREE TRADITIONS 21

---

- Two Fundamental Trends 21
- The Anglo-American Tradition 23
  - Francis Galton 24
  - Reform in America 25

The Clark School	26
William James and the Descriptive Tradition	27
Promise Unfulfilled	28
The German Tradition	30
Wundt and the Folk Psychology of Religion	30
The Dorpat School	32
The Psychoanalytic Critique of Religion	33
Religion as Archetypal Process	34
The German Descriptive Tradition	34
An Ill-Fated Enterprise	36
The French Tradition	37
The French Psychopathological Tradition	38
Apologists for the Religious Life	40
Theodore Flournoy	41
A French Eclectic Tradition	43
A Neglected Literature	46
The Contemporary Revival	47

---

Chapter 3 THE BIOLOGICAL FOUNDATIONS OF RELIGION

49

Bodily States and Religious Experience	49
Hall and the Objective Approach to Religion	50
The Life of G. Stanley Hall	51
A Solitary Country Childhood	52
Expanding Horizons	53
From Preacher to Worldly Professor	54
A Pioneer in Psychology	55
Tragedy and Isolation	56
Hall's Contributions to the Psychology of Religion	57
An Ambivalent Sponsor	57
A Genetic Psychology of Religion	58
Biological Individuality and Religious Types	62
The Four Temperaments and Religion	62
Kretschmer's Constitutional Types	64
Two Protestant Reformers	65
Sheldon's Three-Component Model	67
Deliberate Facilitation of Religious Experience	69
Physiological Deprivation and Religious Experience	70
Overstimulation and Religious States	79
Drugs and Religious Experience	89
Chronic Brain Disorders and Religion	95
Graves' Disease	96
Mental Retardation	96
Epilepsy	97

Cerebral Asymmetry and Religion	103
Lateral Specialization	104
The Bicameral Mind	104
A Cartography of Ecstatic and Meditative States	109
Two Ways to the Self	110
Higher-Level Interpretation	110
EVALUATION OF THE BIOLOGICAL APPROACH	112
On the Relative Value of the Biological Perspective	112
On the Broader Implications of a Physiology of Religion	114
Reductionism: Hostile and Friendly	114
The Mind–Body Problem	115

Chapter 4* BEHAVIORAL AND COMPARATIVE THEORIES OF RELIGION 117

---

BEHAVIOR THEORY AND RELIGION	119
Early Behavioristic Formulations	119
Belief as Reflex Arc	120
Religion as Redintegration	120
Modern Behavior Theory and Religion	122
A Stimulus–Response Theory	123
Outlines of a Skinnerian Psychology of Religion	129
Social Learning Theory and Religion	139
COMPARATIVE STUDIES OF RITUAL BEHAVIOR	146
Canine Devotion	146
Heliotropism and Religion	147
Mysticism as Retinal Reflex	149
From Light to Enlightenment	149
Light in Contemporary Research	150
Ritual Dancing in Apes	152
See Reality Symbolically	153
Ritualization	154
Sociobiology and Religion	155
The Evolution of Altruism	156
The Adaptive Functions of Religious Traditions	156
EVALUATION OF BEHAVIORAL AND COMPARATIVE THEORIES	158
The Limits of Behaviorism	160
Reduction of Experience to Observable Behavior	160
Neglect of Important Determinants of Behavior	161
Behavior Theory as a Means of Attacking Religion	164
On Comparing Human and Animal Behavior	166
Reduction of Anthropomorphic Language	166
Exaggeration of Genetic Factors	166

Chapter 5 RELIGION IN THE LABORATORY

169

- Early "Experimental" Approaches 170
  - Some Early American Experiments 171
  - The Religious Seeker as Experimentalist 172
- Experimental Studies of Prayer 173
  - An Experiment in Prayer Therapy 174
  - Concluding Thoughts on the Efficacy of Prayer 175
- Meditation in the Laboratory 176
  - Varieties of Meditative Practice 176
  - Studies of Yoga 177
  - Psychophysiological Correlates of Zen 179
  - Transcendental Meditation 181
  - Problems in Meditation Research 185
- An Experiment in Drug-Induced Mysticism 188
  - The Experimental Design 188
  - Assessing the Results 189
  - A Miracle That Failed 190
  - A Quarter-Century Follow-Up 191
  - A Second Double-Blind Experiment 192
- Experimental Mysticism Without Drugs 193
  - Hypnotic Alteration of Space and Time 193
  - Devices and Games for Inducing Mystical Experience 194
- A Field Study of the Good Samaritan 199
  - Simulating the Way to Jericho 200
  - Determinants and Styles of Helping 201
  - Further Studies of Why People Help 202

Chapter 6 THE CORRELATION STUDY OF RELIGION

205

- Galton and the Efficacy of Prayer 205
- The Emergence of Modern Correlational Psychology 207
- THE PROBLEM OF MEASURING RELIGION 208
  - Early Measures of Beliefs of Scientists 209
  - The Thurstone Scales of Religious Attitudes 210
- Factor Analysis and the Dimensionality of Religion 212
  - Religion as a Single Factor 213
  - The Case for Multidimensionality 213
  - Religion's Singular Complexity 217
- THE QUEST FOR THE CORRELATES OF RELIGION 219
  - Religion and Social Attitudes 220
  - Religion's Dark Side Today 221
  - An Elusive Search for Humanitarianism 222

Religion and Prejudice	223
Two Types of Piety: Intrinsic and Extrinsic	231
The Search for Alternatives	237
Religion and Mental Health	243
Correlates with Physical Health	243
Mental Health and Religion: A Complex Relation	244
Ecclesiogenic Neuroses	244
Religious Orientation and Mental Health	248
Religion as a Way of Coping	249

EVALUATION OF THE EXPERIMENTAL AND CORRELATIONAL APPROACHES 250

Can Religion Be Brought Into the Laboratory?	251
Can Religious Faith Be Meaningfully Measured?	252
Misleading Generalizations	253
The Exclusion of Subjectivity	254
Science Through a Keyhole	254
Closing the Door to Subjectivity	255
The Neglect of Religious Content	256

Chapter 7* THE PERSPECTIVE OF SIGMUND FREUD

258

The Life of Sigmund Freud	259
A Jewish Childhood in Vienna	260
The Decline of Familial Piety	261
The Education of a Neuropathologist	262
The Growth of Freud's Thinking	264
Freud's Creative Illness	264
Psychoanalysis and the Jewish Tradition	265
Freud the Psychoanalyst	267
An Outline of Psychoanalytic Theory	269
The Psyche's Reluctant Evolution	269
The Psychosexual Stages	271
The Enduring Inheritance from the Formative Years	275
Freud's Psychology of Religion	276
Freud the Godless Jew	276
God the Exalted Father	277
The Origins of the Religious Traditions	279
Religion's Precarious Future	283
Sons and Fathers: Religion's Masculine Roots	285

FURTHER STUDIES ON THE MODEL OF FREUD 286

Oedipal Themes in Religion	286
A Scrupulous Unitarian	287

A Pietist's Sublimations	287
Anthropological Studies	290
Géza Róheim: Religion and the Castration Complex	290
Weston La Barre: Religion as Shamanism	290
Analysis of the Jewish Tradition	292
Biblical Exegesis	293
Ritual	298
Dietary Laws	303
The Attack on Religion	303
Theodore Schroeder: A Welcomed Amateur	304
EVALUATION OF THE FREUDIAN PSYCHOANALYTIC PERSPECTIVE	305
How Adequate is Psychoanalysis?	306
Psychoanalysis as Science	306
Psychoanalysis as Hermeneutics	308
Evaluating the Freudian Interpretation of Religion	309
Empirical Assessment of the Ontogenetic Theory	309
The Interpretive Critique of Freud's Phylogenetic Theory	313
Freud's Legacy to the Psychology of Religion	318

---

Chapter 8 OBJECT-RELATIONS THEORY AND RELIGION 320

Three Forms of Religious Experience	321
The Mother in Religious Faith and Tradition	322
A Theology Student's Longings	322
Sri Ramakrishna: A Simple Child of the Mother	323
The Terrible Mother	326
The Object-Relations Perspective	329
From Drive to Relation	329
Ian Suttie: Religion as Relational Therapy	330
Ronald Fairbairn: The Therapist as Exorcist	335
Harry Guntrip: From Salvation to Communion	337
D. W. Winnicott: Religion as Transitional Phenomenon	339
Paul Pruyser: Illusion Processing in Religion	341
Ana-Maria Ruzzuto: The Representation of God	343
Narcissism in Religious Faith and Tradition	346
A Quest for Self-Perfection	347
Bodhidharma and Zen Buddhism: A Search Within	349
Narcissism among Contemporary Christians	354
A Revised Perspective on Narcissism	355
Heinz Kohut and the Psychology of the Self	355
Narcissism in India	357
Narcissism and Christian Faith	359

Toward an Integrative View	361
The Wider Influence of the Object-Relations Perspective	362
EVALUATION OF THE OBJECT-RELATIONS PERSPECTIVE	364
A Review of Empirical Evidence	364
On Mystical Experience as Regression to Infancy	364
Evidence Bearing on the Object-Relations Perspective in General	365
Evidence Bearing on an Object-Relations Psychology of Religion	367

---

Chapter 9 ERIK H. ERIKSON: RELIGION IN THE HUMAN LIFE CYCLE 371

From Bohemian Artist to World-Renowned Psychoanalyst	371
An Epigenetic Theory of Development	373
The Stages of Psychosocial Development	375
Ritualization and Its Elements	381
The Vitality of Religion	385
Homo Religiosus	386
Martin Luther	387
Mohandas Gandhi	392
Jesus of Galilee	398
Erikson's Continuing Influence	400
Fowler's Stages of Faith	401
EVALUATION OF ERIKSON'S PERSPECTIVE	405
General Criticisms of Erikson's Work	405
The Hazards of Bridging Times and Cultures	408
Luther and His Parents	408
Gandhi and the Hindu Cultural Universe	410
Erikson's Religious Narrative	412

---

Chapter 10 C. J. JUNG AND THE ANALYTICAL TRADITION 414

The Life of C. G. Jung	414
A Visionary's Lonely Childhood	416
Jung's Two Personalities	418
The Study of Psychiatry	419
A Temporary Association with Freud	420
Inner Quest and Outer Achievement	421
Jung's Analytical Psychology	423
A Quest for True Expression	424
Beyond Causal Explanation and Critical Reason	424
The Structure of the Human Psyche	425
The Personal Unconscious	426
The Collective Unconscious and the Archetypes	426
The Dynamics of Self-Realization	431

Psychological Types	432
Differentiation and Integration	433
Jung's Psychology of Religion	434
The Development of Jung's Thought on Religion	435
Religion Defined	436
The Difference Between Western and Eastern Traditions	437
Gnosticism	438
Alchemy	441
The Christ Figure	444
The Idea of the Trinity	445
Transformation Symbolism of the Mass	447
Answer to Job	449
The Continuing Influence of Jung's Psychology	453
The Critique and Renewal of Christianity	454
The Feminine and Feminist Theology	455
Biblical Interpretation	456
Archetypal Phenomenology of Religion	457
Dialogue with the Religious Traditions	457
Christian Spirituality	459
EVALUATION OF THE JUNGIAN APPROACH TO RELIGION	461
A Question of Science	461
Research on Jung's Typology in Relation to Religion	462
Critique of Jung's Interpretation of Religion	464
Psychology as Theology	464
Questionable Presuppositions and Personal Psychology	465
From Rejection to Reverence	469
Jung's Challenge to the Present Age	470

---

Chapter 11 WILLIAM JAMES AND HIS LEGACY

472

The Life of William James	473
An Artist's Education in Science	474
Despair and Deliverance	476
A Great Psychologist Emerges	478
A Mystical Germ	478
The Gifford Lectures	480

JAMES'S PSYCHOLOGY OF RELIGION 482

The Right to Believe	482
The Varieties' Threefold Agenda	483
The Varieties as a Descriptive Work	484
Some Principles of Method	485
Two Fundamental Types	489

The Varieties as a Work of Existential Judgment	493
The Subconscious Self	493
The Varieties as a Work of Spiritual Judgment	495
The Varieties as a Personal Document	497
The Response of the Critics	499
Neglect of Normal Experience	499
Exclusion of Institutional and Historical Factors	500
Overestimation of the Role of Feeling	500
Inclusion of Pathology	501
Appeal to Unknowable Subconscious Processes	501
Imposition of Philosophic Biases	502
The Enduring Influence of the Varieties	503
JAMES PRATT AND THE RELIGIOUS CONSCIOUSNESS	505
In Praise of Ordinary Religious Experience	506
Two Types of Conversion	507
Two Types of Mystic Experience	507
The Feeling Background	510
The Spiritual Power of Symbols	512
Objective and Subjective Worship	517
Catholic and Protestant: Two Contrasting Types	519
Old Symbols and a New Faith	520
A Monument for Succeeding Generations	522

---

Chapter 12 THE GERMAN DESCRIPTIVE TRADITION
524

PHENOMENOLOGICAL AND INTERPRETIVE PSYCHOLOGIES	525
The Religious Act	525
The Structure of the Religious Act	526
The Object of the Religious Act	527
Types of Religious Acts	528
Foundations for an Interpretive Psychology of Religion	528
Understanding	529
Koepp's Schema for Interpretive Understanding	530
Two Classic Examples: Rudolf Otto and Friedrich Heiler	532
The Experience of the Holy	533
The Varieties of Prayer	536
The Essence of Prayer	545
Spranger's Existential-Interpretive Psychology of Religion	545
An Existential Prolegomenon	547
The Structure of the Personal World	548
Toward a New Psychology of the Soul	551

- The Religious Type and Its Varieties 552
- The Course of Religious Development 554

THE DORPAT SCHOOL: SYSTEMATIC EXPERIMENTAL INTROSPECTION 557

- The Method of Experimental Introspection 558
  - Piety in the Laboratory 558
- Girgensohn on the Nature of Religious Experience 560
  - The Experimental Procedures 560
  - Girgensohn's Findings 561
- Contributions to a Differential Psychology of Religion 563
  - Four Responses to a Solitary Wanderer 564
  - A Schizothyme's Apocalyptic Vision 565
- Demise and Its Survivors 566

DESCRIPTIVE RESEARCH IN THE POSTWAR LITERATURE 568

- The Phenomenology of Mystical Consciousness 568
- Studies of Religious Development 569
  - Religion Through the Life Cycle 569
  - Drawings as a Mirror of Religious Development 572

EVALUATION OF THE GERMAN DESCRIPTIVE TRADITION 575

- Misgivings Regarding the Methods Themselves 575
  - Some Questions About Phenomenology 575
  - On the Value of Typology 577
- The Descriptive Approach to Religion 577
  - Which Method is Best? 579
  - The Continuing Challenge of More Adequate Description 580

---

Chapter 13* THE AMERICAN HUMANISTIC SYNTHESIS 582

- Humanistic Elements in the Early American Empiricists 582
- Gordon Allport and the Religious Sentiment 584
  - Full-Bodied Persons and Rigorous Science 584
  - The Religious Sentiment in the Developing Individual 586
  - Attributes of the Mature Religious Sentiment 586
  - Factors Favoring the Mature Religious Sentiment 589
  - A Study of Values 590
  - The Religious Orientation Scale 593
  - Allport's Continuing Influence 594
- Erich Fromm: The Hope of a Humanistic Faith 595
  - The Human Situation 596
  - Two Types of Religion 596
  - Faith as Having or Being 598
  - Radical Humanism in the Jewish Tradition 599

The Authoritarian Spirit in the Christian West	602
Toward a Social Character of Being	603
Abraham Maslow and the Religion of Peak Experiences	604
The Study of Self-Actualization	605
Humanistic Psychology and a Naturalistic Faith	609
Research on Religion Inspired by Maslow's Theories	610
Transpersonal Psychology	616
Near-Death Experiences	618
Parapsychology	622
Two Existential Perspectives on Religion	624
A Bridge Between Psychology and Religion	624
Rollo May: Religion as Resource or Refuge	625
Viktor Frankl: The Search for Meaning	626
EVALUATION OF THE AMERICAN HUMANISTIC TRADITION	628
A Re-Visioning of Religion	628
A Psychology Without Depth?	630
Three Doubtful Assumptions	631

Epilogue

633

---

A Summary Schema	634
Four Fundamental Attitudes	635
Reflections on the Summary Schema	639
A Situation of Crisis	641

Glossary 646References 669Source Notes 723Photo Credits 725Author Index 727Subject Index 739