

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vi
Preface	ix
Introduction: Olympic television: broadcasting the biggest show on earth	1
1 Stories we tell: the development of Olympic television	15
2 Stories shaped: interviews with NBC producers and sportscasters	51
3 Nationalized stories: portraying U.S. vs. portraying “the world”	83
4 Stories segmented by biological sex: men and women in the thirty-first Olympiad	125
5 Racialized stories: stacking and difference at the Rio Games	166
6 Stories reverberated: the impact of Olympic media consumption	202
7 Deciphering stories: the legacy and future of Olympic media	219
Index	235