
CONTENTS

Chapter 1

POLITICAL DISAFFECTION

James D. Wright

Introduction	1
Recent Trends in Disaffection	2
The Theory of Political Alienation	6
Images of Alienation	12
Conceptualization and Measurement of Political Discontent	17
Measures of Political Alienation	22
Origins and Correlates	35
Social Class	37
Age	39
Race	40
Region	41
Party Identification	41
Sex and Marital Status	42
Community Size and Length of Residence	42
And So On	43
The Effects of Political Socialization	45
Explaining the Recent Trends	48
Political Alienation and Political Behavior	52
Attitudinal Correlates	53
Behavioral Effects	58

Conclusion	66
References	71

Chapter 2

SOCIOPOLITICAL MOVEMENTS

J. Craig Jenkins

The Study of Sociopolitical Movements	81
Theories of the Social Origins of Movements	87
Breakdown or Structural-Functionalist Theories	88
Social Psychological Theories	97
Conflict Theories	108
Mobilization, Recruitment, and the Problem of Consciousness ..	114
Movement Organizations and the Problem of Movement Transformation	126
The Strategy and Tactics of Movements	135
The Dynamics of Conflict and the Outcome of Challenges	141
References	148

Chapter 3

PUBLIC OPINION AND IDEOLOGY

Alan D. Monroe

The Concept of Public Opinion	155
History	155
Definition	156
Measurement	158
The Individual Basis of Opinions	160
Psychological Explanations	160
The Role of Political Socialization	163
The Role of Social Characteristics	166
Ideology in Mass Preferences	176
Ideological Conceptualization	178
Constraints among Opinions	179
Awareness and Other Indicators of Ideology	180
Conclusions and Implications	181
Patterns and Trends in Contemporary American Opinion	182
Economic Issues	183
Social Issues	184
International Affairs	187
Overall Trends	189
Public Opinion and Public Policy	190
References	193

Chapter 4

POLITICAL PARTICIPATION

Lester W. Milbrath

Introduction	197
Conceptualizing Political Participation	198
Decisions about Participation	199
Inputs and Outtakes	199
Modes of Participation	200
Factors Antecedent to Behavior	208
Political Participation as a Function of Stimuli	209
Political Participation as a Function of Personal Factors	212
Participation as a Function of Attitudes and Beliefs	213
Participation as a Function of Personality	219
Political Participation as a Function of Social Position	221
Social Position at the Center or Periphery of Society	222
Socioeconomic Status (SES) or Class	223
Place of Residence	225
Organizational Involvement	226
Community Identification	227
Age	227
Variations by Sex	228
Race	229
Political Participation as a Function of Environmental Variables	230
The Level of Modernization	230
Modernization and Political Violence	231
Rules of the Game	232
The Party System	233
What Difference Does Political Participation Make?	235
References	237

Chapter 5

MASS COMMUNICATION AND POLITICS

Dan Nimmo

Origins and Background of Contemporary Research	241
Propaganda Analysis	243
Attitude Change Research	243
The Voting Studies	244
Government and the Press	244
The Communication Sciences	244
The Political Media of Mass Communication	245

Dimensions of the Mass Communication–Politics Relationship	248
Campaigns and Electoral Politics	249
Mass Communication and Political Socialization	260
Mass Communication, Political Images, and Public Opinion ..	263
Government and the News Media	267
Mass Communication and Public Policy	271
Methodological Considerations	272
Rhetorical Analysis	273
Content Analysis	273
Experimental Research	274
Survey Research	275
Intensive Analysis	276
Linguistic Analysis	277
Theoretical Approaches	277
Micro Perspectives	278
Macro Perspectives	279
Politics and Communication, or Political Communication?	280
References	281

Chapter 6

THE RISE AND FALL OF ‘POLITICAL DEVELOPMENT’

Fred W. Riggs

‘Political Development’: What Is It?	289
Is It a Word?	289
Has It a Meaning?	290
What Is Its Etiology?	294
‘Political Development’: What Happened to It?	298
Some Historical Background	298
The Period of Incubation	303
Attempts at Conceptual Ordering	308
The Denouement	313
‘Political Development’: What Are Its Meanings?	323
From Autonym to Conceptualizations	323
The Compilation of Concepts	325
The Requisite Variables	326
Changes in the Decision-Making Process: Expansion of Choice	330
The Outcome Variables	335
Conclusion	337
Glossary	338
References	344

INDEX	349
--------------------	-----