

Contents

Markus Heide & Gabriele Pisarz-Ramirez

Introduction: The Early United States in a Transnational Perspective.....9

I. The Two Americas: Spanish America and U.S. Literary Discourse

Wil M. Verhoeven

Trouble on the Western Frontier: Sedition and Secessionism
in the Ohio Valley, 1783–1806.....35

Barbara Buchenau

Empire – Nation – Urbanity: Renewing Scripts and Frames
in the Old Northwest53

Markus Heide

The Hemispheric Frame and Travel Writing of the Early United States:
Zebulon Pike, Henry Marie Brackenridge, and William Duane.....73

Gabriele Pisarz-Ramirez

From “Southern Brethren” to “Tracherous Cowards”:
Temporal Narratives of Latin America in Early Nineteenth-Century
U.S. America97

Astrid Haas

Mexican Travelers and the “Texas Question,” 1821–1836 117

Hannah Spahn

Erasing the Stamp of Toussaint L'Ouverture? The Haitian Revolution and the Question of Character.....133

II. Transnational Perspectives and the Western Hemisphere

Stefan L. Brandt

The Algerine Dilemma: (Cons)Piracy and the Specter of North Africa in Early U.S. Barbary Narratives157

Alma Villanueva
The Muslim Slave Auto/biographical Tradition: Disrupting the Master-Slave Dialectic in the Americas173

Astrid M. Fellner
“Subaltern Knowledges in the Borderlands:” Drawing the Sexual Boundaries of the Early United States203

Contributors221

Index225