

Contents

PREFACE	v
1. ENVIRONMENTAL MAN	1
Environmental Psychology: How It Began	1
Evolution and Change	3
What Is Environmental Psychology?	5
The Emergence of Environmental Man	7
Design and Behavior	10
Some Major Assumptions	12
References	15
Suggested Readings	16
2. HISTORICAL ATTITUDES TOWARD THE     NATURAL ENVIRONMENT	17
The Symbolic Landscape	18
Nature Worship	20
The Greek World of Ideal Forms	22
The Christian Belief in Divine Creation	24
Painting and the Christian Vision	25
Biblical Orientation to Wilderness	30
Linear Time	31
The Way of Tao	34
Science and Nature	35
The Emphasis on Experiment	36
Nature as Fact	38
Nature as Fantasy	40
Nature as Abstraction	40
Naturalism and Romance	43
American Pride in the Natural World	46
French Impressionists and the Interior Landscape	48
The Oriental Landscape	49
Summary and Conclusions	52
References	58
Suggested Readings	59
3. THE SEARCH FOR ENVIRONMENTAL THEORY	60
Approaches to Man: Psychoanalytic Theory, Behaviorism, and Gestalt Theory	63

Lewin's Field Theory	69
Barker's Ecological Psychology	70
Some Microtheoretical Approaches	72
The View from Other Disciplines	75
References	78
Suggested Readings	79
4. MAN/ENVIRONMENT TRANSACTIONS: SOME GUIDING ASSUMPTIONS	80
Man as a Dynamically Organized System	82
Motivational Processes Underlying Behavior	84
The Emergent Nature of Experience	86
Affective Determinants of Behavior	87
Learning and Behavior	88
Patterns of Behavior and the Physical Setting	90
Conservation of Behavior	92
Awareness and Adaptation	93
The Role of Cognition	98
References	100
Suggested Readings	101
5. ENVIRONMENT PERCEPTION	102
Environments as Sources of Information	105
Environment Perception as Information Processing	109
Environment Perception in Different Environments	113
What Is Perceived	120
Environment Perception and Other Psychological Processes	121
Functional Relevance of Environment Perception	122
References	124
Suggested Readings	125
6. SOCIAL INTERACTION AND THE ENVIRONMENT	126
Social Influences and Environmental Behavior	127
Social Interaction and Social Processes	127
The Individual and Physical Settings	130
The Small Group and Its Setting	137
Some Social-Environmental Issues	141
Territoriality	142
Territoriality of Groups	146
Crowding	148
Privacy	152
Summary and Conclusions	160
References	162
Suggested Readings	166

7. INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT AND THE ENVIRONMENT	167
A Framework	169
Infancy and Early Childhood	173
Preschool Period through Childhood	179
Adolescence	194
The Mature Years	197
The Declining Years	200
Summary	204
References	204
Suggested Readings	207
8. RESEARCH METHODS IN ENVIRONMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY	208
Approaches to Environmental Psychology	208
Experimental Research—Controlling the Variables	211
Holistic Design—The Search for Themes	215
Survey Research—The Quest for Self-Disclosure	217
Exploratory Research—Looking for the Questions	221
The Interpretation of Data	222
Choosing the Appropriate Method	225
Direct Observation—An Ecological Approach	228
Behavioral Mapping—A Spatial Approach to Observation	232
Simulation Techniques for Evaluating the Environment	233
Cognitive Mapping	236
Summary and Conclusion	239
References	240
Suggested Readings	242
9. THE CITY AS AN UNNATURAL HABITAT	243
Historical Background of Urban Studies	248
The Pathological City	250
Effects of Crowding and Density	254
The Overloaded Environment	258
Stress in Urban Living	263
Housing and the Urban Environment	267
The Neighborhood and Forced Urban Change	276
Other Neighborhood Effects	281
The Flight to the Suburbs	284
How the City Is Imaged	288
The Livability of Cities	294
Summary and Conclusions	297
References	298
Suggested Readings	302

10. THE PERCEPTION AND USE OF THE NATURAL ENVIRONMENT	303
Utility versus Conservation	304
Other Perspectives toward the Natural Environment	306
Natural Hazard Perception and Response	308
Variations in Individual Response	314
The Wilderness and Recreation Behavior	321
Decision-Making and the Formation of Public Attitudes	330
Summary and Conclusions	337
References	338
Suggested Readings	340
11. THE BUILT ENVIRONMENT	341
Determinism and Design	344
The Problem of Fit	347
Planners and Users	349
The Person and the Built Environment	351
Problems in Using the Built Environment	355
Design and Social Effect: The Small Group	358
Social Design and Site Planning	364
Institutional Settings	367
New Towns and Model Cities	382
The Future Environment	387
References	391
Suggested Readings	396
INDEX	397