

Contents

Preface	ix
Abbreviations used in this book	xiii
1 Introduction	1
Regional English and Urban English	1
conservatism of Ulster speech; Elizabethan English; Ulster influence on American English; urban dialects;
social problems and language
'Accent' and 'dialect'	6
levels of linguistic organisation: lexical, grammatical,
phonological; non-standard grammar and vocabulary:
whenever, yous; Sing-Con; TFS ; other forms
'Accent' and the problem of variation	15
Standard and non-standard English	18
difficulty in defining the standard; geographical and social aspects of standardisation; stylistic variation
and code-switching
2 Belfast Speech: the geographical and historical setting	22
rise of Belfast as an industrial city; its geographical relation to the two main Ulster dialect types: Ulster Anglo-Irish and Ulster Scots;
Belfast speech in 1860	26
data from D. Patterson; changes since 1860
3 Language in Society	34
differences between male and female speech; covert prestige
and the tendency for younger males to preserve vernacular forms;
pressures to maintain non-standard speech
Different attitudes of the sexes	38
Regional differences within Belfast	40
The question of ethnic differences in accent	41
4 Cardinal Vowels and the Sound-System of Belfast English	45
phonology; definitions of vowels and consonants	45
Cardinal vowels	47
principles; difficulties for students; relation of some Ulster vowels to the cardinal vowels; other vowels: secondary and non-cardinal symbols	