

CONTENTS

I: WIEBE AND THE MENNONITES

Rudy Wiebe: "Tombstone Community"	16
Rudy Wiebe: "For the Mennonite Churches: A Last Chance"	25
Rudy Wiebe: "The Meaning of Being Mennonite Brethren"	32
Rudy Wiebe: "The Artist as a Critic and a Witness"	39

II: PEACE SHALL DESTROY MANY

Herbert Giesbrecht: "O Life, How Naked and How Hard When Known!"	50
Rudy Wiebe: "An Author Speaks About His Novel"	64
Elmer F. Suderman: "Universal Values in Rudy Wiebe's Peace Shall Destroy Many "	69

III: THE BLUE MOUNTAINS OF CHINA

Rudy Wiebe: "Moros and Mennonites in the Chaco of Paraguay"	80
Ina Ferris: "Religious Vision and Fictional Form: Rudy Wiebe's The Blue Mountains of China "	88
Magdalene Falk Redekop: "Translated into the Past: Language in The Blue Mountains of China "	97

IV: THE TEMPTATIONS OF BIG BEAR

Margaret Reimer and Sue Steiner: "Translating Life into Art: A Conversation with Rudy Wiebe"	126
Rudy Wiebe: "On the Trail of Big Bear"	132
Rudy Wiebe: "Bear Spirit in a Strange Land" ("All That's Left of Big Bear")	143
Eli Mandel and Rudy Wiebe: "Where the Voice Comes From"	150

V: THE SCORCHED-WOOD PEOPLE

Rudy Wiebe: "Riel: A Possible Film Treatment"	158
Brian Bergman: "Rudy Wiebe: Storymaker of the Prairies"	163
R.P. Bilan and Sam Solecki: Two Reviews of The Scorched-Wood People	171
David L. Jeffrey: "A Search for Peace: Prophecy and Parable in the Fiction of Rudy Wiebe"	179

VI: WIEBE AND THE ART OF FICTION

George Melnyk: "The Western Canadian Imagination: An Interview with Rudy Wiebe"	204
Rudy Wiebe: "In the West, Sir John A. is a Bastard and Riel a Saint. Ever Ask Why?"	209
Rudy Wiebe: "A Novelist's Personal Notes on Frederick Philip Grove"	212
Shirley Neuman: "Unearthing Language: An Interview with Rudy Wiebe and Robert Kroetsch"	226
Bibliography	249
Index	251