

List of Figures	x i
Abbreviations	x ii
A Note on the Texts	xv
A Preface to the Reader: Describing ‘Literary Life’ in the Mid- and Late Seventeenth Century	xvii
1. Ending the War, Creating a Commonwealth, and Surviving the Interregnum, 1645–1658	I
I. 1645	I
II. Laws Regulating Publication, Speech, and Performance, 1645–1658	33
III. Humphrey Moseley and London Literary Publishing: Making the Book, Image, and Word	41
IV. Hearing, Speaking, Writing: Religious Discourse from the Pulpit, among the Congregations, and from the Prophets	54
V. Fiction and Adventure Narratives: Romantic Foreigners and Native Romances	70
VI. Sociable Texts: Manuscript Circulation, Writers, and Readers in Britain and Abroad	76
2. The Return of the King, Restoration, and Innovation, 1659–1673	91
I. 1659–1660	91
II. Laws Regulating Publication, Speech, and Performance, 1660–1673	125
III. Renovating the Stage: Companies, Actresses, Repertoire, Theatre Innovations, and the Touring Companies	137
IV. Enacting Libertinism: Court Performance and Literary Culture	159
V. Creating Science: The Royal Society and the New Literatures of Science	168
VI. ‘Adventurous Song’: Samuel Butler, Abraham Cowley, Katherine Philips, John Milton, and 1660s Verse	185

3. Reading and Writing for Profit and Delight, 1674–1684	209
I. 1674–1675	209
II. Laws Regulating Publication, Speech, and Performance, 1674–1684	252
III. Poets and the Politics of Patronage and Literary Criticism	264
IV. Theatrical Entertainments Outside the London Commercial Playhouses: Smock Alley, Strollers, School Plays, and Private Performances	277
V. Fictions: The Pilgrim's Progress , the New 'Novels', and Love and Erotica	285
VI. Foreign Parts: English Readers and Foreign Lands and Cultures	294
4. The End of the Century, Scripting Transitions, 1685–1699	311
I. 1685–1686	311
II. Laws Regulating Publication, Speech, and Performance, 1685–1699	360
III. Heard in the Street: Broadside Ballads	366
IV. Seen on Stage: English Operas, the Female Wits, and the 'Reformed' Stage	373
V. Debates between the Sexes: Satires, Advice, and Polemics	393
5. Writing the New Britain, 1700–1714	407
I. 1700	407
II. Laws Regulating Publication, Preaching, and Performance, 1700–1714	445
III. Kit-Cats and Scriblerians: Clubs, Wits, the Tatler , the Spectator , and The Memoirs of Martin Scriblerus	454
IV. Booksellers and the Book Trade: John Dunton, Edmund Curl, Grub Street, and the Rise of Bernard Lintot	465
V. 'The Great Business of Poetry': Poets, Pastoral, and Politics	471

Appendix: Companion Volume: Table of Contents	503
Bibliography	505
Index	557