

Contents

- 7 Acknowledgements
- 8 Note on Access
- 10 Introduction
On the Country House Library
- CHAPTER ONE
- 22 'Reciting my Poems Even in Britain'
From Roman Britain to Magna Carta
- CHAPTER TWO
- 28 'A study caullid Paradise'
The Antecedents of the Country House Library, from the Thirteenth Century to the Early Tudor Period
- CHAPTER THREE
- 56 'This scribbling age'
The Country House Library from the Reformation to the Civil War
- CHAPTER FOUR
- 84 'Your own admirable library'
Book Collecting and the Country House from Elizabeth I to the Eighteenth Century
- CHAPTER FIVE
- 112 'A Great Number of Usefull Books'
Ordinary Books and Ordinary Libraries from the Late Seventeenth to the Early Nineteenth Centuries
- CHAPTER SIX
- 132 'A spacious Room'
Library Architecture and Fittings from the Restoration to Queen Victoria
- CHAPTER SEVEN
- 160 Bibliomania
The Book Craze of the Late Eighteenth and Early Nineteenth Centuries, and its Afterlife
- CHAPTER EIGHT
- 180 The Country House Librarian
- CHAPTER NINE
- 186 'A very pretty and comfortable room'
The Library and Country House Life in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries
- CHAPTER TEN
- 202 Town and Country
The Relationship between Libraries in Country
Houses, Town Houses and Suburban Villas
- CHAPTER ELEVEN
- 224 Reading and Borrowing
Using the Library
- CHAPTER TWELVE
- 232 The Nouveaux Riches
New Money and New Libraries in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries
- CHAPTER THIRTEEN
- 248 'Ravaged by body-snatchers'
The Dispersal of the Country House Library, from the Late Nineteenth Century
- CHAPTER FOURTEEN
- 268 The Body in the Library
Libraries and the Politics of Heritage in the Twentieth Century
- 292 Reference Abbreviations
- 293 Notes
- 323 Bibliography
- 341 Photographic and Copyright Credits
- 342 Index