

Contents

Introduction	1
1 An Irish heritage
from Conacre	15
The Irish dimension	16
In the Rosses	17
Gloss: on the difficulties of translation	18
Two Irish saints	19
Once alien here	20
The colony	21
An Irishman in Coventry	25
The scar	26
The Municipal Gallery revisited, October 1954	27
2 Divided Ulster
For any Irishman	31
Encounter nineteen-twenty	32
Two spectres haunt me	33
After the fire	34
The green shoot	35
Conversations in Hungary, August 1969	36
Cultra Manor: the Ulster Folk Museum	38
The Lass of Richmond Hill; or the Royal Garden Party	39
The coasters	41
Neither an elegy nor a manifesto from The Bloody Brae	44
3 In the country
Because I paced my thought	53
The Glens	54
First snow in the Glens	55
The ram's horn	56
Frost	57
The little lough	58
The swathe uncut	59
The stoat	60
The owl	61
The watchers	62
O country people	63

The witch	65
Turf carrier on Aranmore	67
Mary Hagan, Islandmagee, 1919	69
Minotaur	70
Compton Wynyates, Warwickshire	73
On a January train journey	74
Grey and white	75
The sheep skull	76
The shortened day	77
4 Memories and thoughts
I write for. . .	81
Domestic help	82
The one I loved	83
Betrayal	84
No second Troy	85
Those morning walks	86
Who was C.B. Fry?	87
My father's ghost	88
E.H. 1877-1958	89
Away match: June 1924	90
First funeral	92
Clogh-Oir: September 1971	93
Sonnets for Roberta: 1,2	95
From a museum man's album	96
As you like it	99
On reading Terence de Vere White on Landor	102
For a September afternoon of unexpected brightness	103
The distances	104
The modelled head	105
Emily Dickinson	106
Substance and shadow	107
The happy man	108
The habit of mercy	109
The child, the chair, the leaf	110
Revenant	112
A local poet	113
The romantic	114
November park	115
Expectancy	116
Bibliography	119