

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	page vii
Introduction	1
 PART I: THE IDEOLOGICAL INHERITANCE
1. Educational theory and moral independence	9
The Lockean paradigm in the eighteenth century	12
Rousseau and the new authority	29
2. The transmission of ideology and the bestsellers of 1775	36
The new paternity and the bestsellers of 1775	38
The pedagogues	40
The moralists	51
3. The familial politics of the Fortunate Fall	67
The prodigal as pilgrim: Robinson Crusoe in America	67
Two views of the Fall: Clarissa in America	83
 PART II: FORMS OF FILIAL FREEDOM
4. The debt of nature reconsidered	93
The limits of gratitude: the argument applied	93
Franklin and the new order of the ages	106
Iconography: prodigals and parental tyrants	113
5. Affectionate unions and the new voluntarism	123
Wedded love and revolutionary ideology	123
From passive to active disobedience	144
6. Filial freedom and American Protestantism	155
The assault on Jehovah	156
Human accountability and the moral character of God	164
Protestant politics: liberty and sonship	174
The common ground: the necessity of rebirth	183
The triumph of nurture	188

PART III: THE CHARACTER OF THE NATIONAL FAMILY

7. George Washington and the reconstituted family	197
The power of example	202
The character of the father	208
The debt of honor and the greater good	214
Dissent and confidence	221
8. The sealing of the garden, Or the world well lost	227
The national family or the Christian family of nations?	227
The dangers of sentimental fraternity: the hardening of the heart	230
Ventriloquists, counterfeiters, and the seduction of the mind	235
From political to moral independence: the triumph of neutrality	248
The new family as the New World	259
Notes	269
Index	316