

Contents / Sommaire / Inhalt

Elisabeth Dutton (Fribourg) – Introduction	7
Jens Rüffer (Bern) – Artes mechanicae, creatio, ingenium and phantasia – Some remarks on the term ‘art’ in the Middle Ages	13
Tiziana Suarez-Nani (Fribourg) – Création divine et production humaine : un itinéraire entre Moyen Âge et Renaissance	31
Michele Bacci (Fribourg) – Medieval Craftsmen and the Making of the Holy	47
Laurenz Lütteken (Zürich) – Virtus und memoria . Schwierigkeiten des spätmittelalterlichen Kompositionsbegriffs	65
Max Haas (Basel) – Über Voraussetzungen der musikalischen Produktion im 14. Jahrhundert	77
Almut Schneider (Magdeburg) – Das Gewebe der Sprache. Poetische Kreativität bei Gottfried von Straßburg und Konrad von Würzburg	87
Marco Nievergelt (Paris) – Textuality as Sexuality: The Generative Poetics of the ‘Roman de la Rose’	103
Olivia Robinson (Oxford) – Creation through replication? Rethinking Creativity in Late Medieval Franco-English Translation	131
Sebastian Coxon (London) – Medieval authorship in sixteenth-century Straßburg: Johannes Pauli and his ‘Schimpf und Ernst’ (1522)	147
Helen Swift (Oxford) – Decomposition and Recomposition: Death and Identity in Late Medieval France	159
Elsa Strietman (Cambridge) – Medieval Practices of the Creative Act: The Staging of the History of Salvation in ‘Die Eerste Bliscap van Maria’ and ‘Die Sevenste Bliscap van Onser Vrouwen’ in the context of the drama of the Low Countries	171

Emma Buckley (St. Andrews) – Medieval and Early Modern: Classical Authorities in William Gager’s (1583) ‘Dido’	189
Peter Mack (Warwick) – Expected Response and Linguistic creativity in renaissance rhetoric	209
Index	219