Contents

Abbreviations vii
Permissions ix
Acknowledgments xi

Introduction 1

PART I
Transforming Phenomenology: Plurality and the Political 17

1 The Emergence of Plurality 19
Arendt's Critique of Existenz Philosophy and Classic Phenomenology 20
A New Political Philosophy: Rethinking the With-World 39

2 Pluralizing and Politicizing Basic Phenomenological Concepts 51
Appearance 53
Experience 76
World 93

3 Arendt's Phenomenological Methodology 109
An Enactive Approach to Conditionality 109
Dynamic Spaces of Meaning 123

PART II
Actualizing Plurality: The We, the Other, and the Self in Political Intersubjectivity 149

4 Plurality as Political Intersubjectivity
Plurality in Political Theory, Social Ontology, and Arendt-Scholarship 152