

Contents

Part I Judicial System

1	Why Send Law to the Countryside?	3
1.1	Question and Materials	3
1.2	Why Send Law to the Countryside?	6
1.3	Operation and Space of Power	10
1.4	Going to the Countryside—the Reconstruction of the Relationship of Local Dominant Power.	14
1.5	Village Cadres—Carriers of Local Knowledge	16
1.6	Another Possibility of Knowledge and Another Role of the Village Cadres	19
1.7	Conclusion	21
	Appendix: Experience the Modernity of Chinese Law	23
2	Court Trial and Its Administration	29
2.1	The Definition of Problem	29
2.2	Two Institutions and the Structure of Courts	33
2.3	Administrative Judicial Institution in the Judicial Process	38
2.4	Collective Decisions of Administration	42
2.5	The Final Review	45
3	The Judicial Committee System in Basic-level Courts	51
3.1	The Definition of a Problem.	51
3.2	Approaches, Methods, and Materials.	54
3.3	Composition and Operation of Judicial Committees	63
3.4	Views and Reasoning of Judges.	66
3.5	Are the Reasons of Judges Trustworthy?	72
3.6	Observation from Another Perspective	76
3.7	The Problem with Judicial Committees	79
3.8	Analysis of Two Examples.	82
3.9	Conclusion	88

Part II Judicial Knowledge and Technology

4	Courts of First Instance and Appellate Court	99
4.1	Judicial Knowledge as a Kind of Local Knowledge	99
4.2	Outline of Judicial Knowledge Genealogy	102
4.3	China's Basic-level Courts as Courts of First Instance	106
4.4	The Basic-level Courts as China's Courts of First Instance.	110
4.5	The Ending as a Beginning	115
	Appendix: The Importance of the Trial Judge	116
5	Dispute Settlement and Governance of Rules.	119
5.1	Pose a Question	119
5.2	Two "Cases".	121
5.3	The Difference in Concern.	125
5.4	Why Care About Dispute Settlement?	127
5.5	Rules Behind Particularism	129
5.6	Modernization and Rules	132
6	Inbetween Facts and Laws	135
6.1	Introduction: Weber and Qiu Ju	135
6.2	A Dispute on a Farm Cattle and Legal Disputes	138
6.3	Factual Disputes in China's Justice System.	140
6.4	Facts, or Law	145
6.5	The Social Format of Events	148
6.6	The Document Format of Events.	154
6.7	Counterevidence?	158
6.8	Epilogue.	161
	Appendix: Judiciary as Formatting Tool and Process.	161
7	Between Statute and Custom	167
7.1	The Significance of Customs from the Perspective of Judiciary.	167
7.2	The Whole Story of the Case and Its "Legal" Treatment.	169
7.3	The Spread of Customs and Their Wide Recognition	174
7.4	Interaction Between Statute and Customs	179
7.5	More Conclusions	184
8	Delivery of Judicial Knowledge of Basic-level Judges	187
8.1	Relationship Between Judicial Knowledge and Judges.	187
8.2	Main Constraints and Resources of Knowledge Production by Judges	189
8.3	From the Perspective of Substantial Dispute	193
8.4	In Terms of Legal Disputes	197
8.5	Practical Significance of Knowledge of Basic-level Judges	202
8.6	The Theoretical Significance of Knowledge of Basic-level Judges	207

Part III Judges and Legal Personnel

9	Legal Personnel in Rural Society	215
9.1	Summary of Legal Personnel in Rural Society	215
9.2	Legal Workers	219
9.3	Legal Instrument Server	226
9.4	Judges as Lawyers	229
10	Professionalism of Judges in Basic-level Courts	233
10.1	“Demobilized and Transferred Soldiers Working in the Court”	233
10.2	The Rough Situations of Judges in Basic-level Courts	236
10.2.1	Demobilized Soldiers	239
10.2.2	University or College Graduates	242
10.2.3	Judges Transferred to Court from Other Places	244
10.3	Where Have All the Law-School Graduates Gone?	245
10.4	“Liberation Army as a School of Revolution”	253
10.5	“Washing Our Face with a Basin of Water, While Still Washing Our Face with a Bucket of Water”	263
10.6	“What I Learned in School Has Already Been Returned to the Teachers”	270
10.7	“Becoming Spring Mud to Give a Better Protection to Flowers”—A Reflection on Demobilized Soldiers Entering Courts	275
10.8	“Things in the World Are Complicated”	280
	Appendix: Magistrates and Magistrate Jurisdiction in the USA	282

Part IV Reflection on Research Method

11	Power Resources of Legal Sociology Surveys	289
11.1	Emergence of This Question	289
11.2	One Analysis on Power Relationships	292
11.3	Analysis Two of Power Relationship	295
11.4	Inspiration	298

References	305
-----------------------------	-----

Index	313
------------------------	-----