

Contents

Preface	vii
I Introduction	1
II The Dutch at Hirado	9
III The island of Deshima	18
IV Visits to Edo	25
V The Nagasaki interpreters and early medical and astronomical studies	32
VI Arai Hakuseki and intellectual developments in Genroku and Shotoku	43
VII Tokugawa Yoshimune and Western learning	49
VIII Aoki Kon'yo and Noro Genjo	66
IX The kohoka , Maeno Ryotaku and Sugita Gempaku	74
X The advent of heliocentricity	87
XI Otsuki Gentaku and the spread of Rangaku	119
XII Western learning in various domains	147
XIII Western learning in private schools	175
XIV Rangaku and Tokugawa intellectual ferment	190
XV Conclusion	223
Notes	239
Bibliography	271
Index	291