

CONTENTS

Preface p. ix

List of Abbreviations xi

I INTRODUCTION: THE LEGACY OF THE THIRTEENTH CENTURY I

PART I CHURCH AND STATE

II THE SOCIAL STRUCTURE OF THE ENGLISH CHURCH 9

The bishops, p. 9; civil servants, p. 11; scholars, p. 14; religious, p. 18; officials of the Roman Curia, p. 21; diocesan administrators and cathedral clergy; aristocrats, p. 22. The greater benefices in cathedral and collegiate churches, p. 26. The parish clergy, p. 27.

III PATRONAGE AND THE USE OF BENEFICES 30

Patronage exercised by the Crown, p. 30; by the magnates, p. 32. Indirect patronage, p. 34. Exploitation of benefices, p. 35. Pluralism, p. 36. Effects of the system, p. 41.

IV PAPAL PROVISIONS 47

Procedure, p. 48. Effect of provisions on the episcopate, p. 54; on parish churches, p. 58; on cathedral chapters, p. 59. The classes who benefited, p. 62. The attitude of the laity, p. 65; of the king, p. 66; of the clergy, p. 69; of the chroniclers, p. 71.

V ANGLO-PAPAL RELATIONS 76

The first period (1300-1342), p. 76. The second period (1342-1360), p. 81. The statutes of Provisors and Praemunire, p. 84. The third period (1360-1399), p. 87. The significance of the struggle between Crown and Papacy, p. 93. Conclusion, p. 97.

PART II INTELLECTUAL LIFE AND CONTROVERSY

VI SCHOLASTIC INSTITUTIONS AND THE GEOGRAPHY OF LEARNING 105

The universities, p. 105. The geographical distribution of higher studies, p. 109. The cathedral schools, p. 110. The friars, p. 119. The Roman Curia, p. 120.

CONTENTS

VII	TOPICS OF CONTROVERSY	p. 123
	Apostolic poverty, p. 123. Seculars and mendicants, p. 124. Church endowment, p. 126. The rights of the State, p. 127. The two swords, p. 129. Dominion, p. 129. Monastic life, p. 130. Predestination and grace, p. 131. The Immaculate Conception, p. 131. Anti-intellectualism, p. 132.

VIII	PERSONALITIES	136
	The Mertonians, p. 136. The friars, p. 140. Richard FitzRalph, p. 151. Two monastic writers: Uthred of Boldon and Adam Easton, p. 165. Thomas Brunton, monk of Norwich and Bishop of Rochester, p. 182.

PART III RELIGIOUS LITERATURE

IX	MANUALS OF INSTRUCTION FOR PARISH PRIESTS	189
	The Oculus sacerdotis , p. 195. The Cilium oculi , p. 202. The Speculum curatorum , p. 203. The Regimen animarum , p. 203. The Memoriale presbiterorum , p. 205. Archbishop Thoresby's Instructions , p. 211. The Pupilla oculi , p. 213. Mirk's Instructions for parish priests , p. 214. Mirk's Manuale sacerdotis , p. 215. Mirk's Festiall , p. 217. Appendix to Chapter IX: some thirteenth-century Summae , p. 219.

X	RELIGIOUS AND MORAL TREATISES IN THE VERNACULAR	220
	Group I: St Edmund's Mirror , p. 222. Group II: the Manuel des péchés and Handling Sin , p. 224. Group III: the Somme le Roi and the Azenbite of Inwit , p. 225. Group IV: the Speculum Vitae , p. 227. Group V: miscellaneous, p. 230. The Livre de Seyntz Medicines , p. 231. Preaching, p. 235. Wall paintings, p. 239. Religious drama, p. 242.

XI	ENGLISH MYSTICAL LITERATURE OF THE FOURTEENTH CENTURY	244
	The English mystics, p. 244. The relation of mystical literature to the literature of religious instruction, p. 248. Some characteristics of the English mystics, p. 251. The devout layman, p. 253. Margery Kempe, p. 256. Conclusion, p. 261.

Appendix I		263
	The Latin text of passages quoted from manuscript sources

Appendix II		277
	Two collections of didactic treatises

Index		281
--------------	--	-----