

Distraction

Problems of Attention in Eighteenth-Century Literature

NATALIE M. PHILLIPS

Johns Hopkins University Press
Baltimore

Preface vii

Introduction: The Literary History of Distraction I

The Unifocal and the Multifocal / The Rise of the Distracted Character / Attention, Distraction, and Enlightenment Philosophy of Mind / A Swiftly Tilting Madness / Categorizing Distraction

1 Mind Wandering: Forms of Distraction in the Eighteenth-Century Essay 29

Distraction and the Eighteenth-Century Essay / The Rhetoric of Attention: Appealing to Pathos and Brevitas / The Essay as a Tool of Focus / Training Attention to Attention / Strengthening Focus: Repetition and Dramatic Irony / Economies of Attention / The History of Attention Span

2 Lapses of Concentration: Distracted Vigilance and the Female Mind 61

Environment and Mind: Urban Diversion and the Distracted Brain / The Problem of a Soft Female Mind / Sex, Environment, and the Multifocal Coquette / The Challenges of Situational Awareness / Philosophizing Multiplicity: Cognitive Bottlenecks and Sorting Gloves / Strained Omniscience and the Distracted Heroine / The Crowded Syntax of Sexual Inattention / "Might as Well Be Passed Over as Read": Indulging the Diverted Reader

3 Scattered Attention: Distraction and the Rhythm of Cognitive Overload 96

Rhythms of Narrative, Rhythms of Mind / Tristram's Style and the Scattered Rhythms of Cognitive Overload / Susannah and the Vexed Situation of Madam Reader / The Anatomy of Parallel Processing / The Sermon and Rhythms of Distraction / Hobbyhorses and the Individual Beat of Interest / Irregular Distraction: The Tempo of Cognitive Overload / Rhythms of the Brain: Creativity and the Timing of Distraction

4	Fixated Attention: The Gothic Pathology of Single-Minded Focus	132
	Microscope and Mind / Scientific Metaphors and the Madness of Attention / The Politics and Poetics of Fixation / Involuntary Attention: A Multifocal Selective Blindness / Sympathy and the Benefits of Distraction / Rewriting Suspense: Interruption and the Gothic Sublime / Fixation and the Science of Obsession
5	Divided Attention: Characterization and Cognitive Richness in Jane Austen	174
	The Power of Multitasking in Pride and Prejudice / The Singular Importance of Inattentive Characters / Mr. Hurst: The Limited Capacity of the Undivided Mind / Mrs. Jenkinson: Narrow Bandwidth and the Creation of Depth / Lydia and Miss Bingley: Caricaturing Cognitive Vacancy / The Dangers of Too Much Attention / Distraction as Liveliness of Mind / Mary Bennet: Hyperfocus and Cognitive Immobility / Lady Catherine de Bourgh: The Problem of Excess Vigilance / Elizabeth Bennet: The Benefits of Diversion / Characterizing Reading: Maps of Distraction and Interest
	Coda: History of Mind and Literary Neuroscience	212
	Interdisciplinarity: From Theory to Practice / Literary Attention: An fMRI Study of Reading Jane Austen / The Value of Literary History
	Notes	231
	Bibliography	259
	Index	281