

Inhaltsverzeichnis

1. Introduction	13
1.1 A State?	14
1.2 The Analytical Grid	16
2. Definitions: Four Sources for a Stoic Concept of the State	21
2.1 The State of Our Sources	21
2.2 Chrysostom: "Human Beings Administrated by Law"	22
2.3 Clement of Alexandria	24
2.3.1 "Neither Expugnable nor Subjugable"	25
2.3.2 The Wise State vs. the People as an Organized Group	26
2.4 Cleanthes: A Construction for Refuge and Justice	27
2.5 Arius Didymus: Dwelling and Organized Group	29
3. A Dwelling	33
3.1 Urban Structures and Institutions	33
3.1.1 Gymnasia	34
3.1.2 Temples	35
3.1.3 Justice and the Urban Center	40
3.2 A Common Home and the Theory of Attachment	42
3.2.1 Non-instrumental sociability	43
3.2.1.1 Expansional Social Attachment	44
3.2.1.2 Essential Social Attachment	46
3.2.2 The Cosmos as a Dwelling Made for Gods and Humans	47
4. The Cosmos as a State	51
4.1 The Cosmic Home as a World State	51
4.2 Only a Comparison?	53
4.2.1 The Citizen of the Cosmos in Therapy and Exhortation	54
4.2.2 A Cosmic Model-State	55
4.3 From Household to Kingdom	58
4.3.1 Household Terminology in Stoicism	61
4.3.2 Polis or Politeia?	63
4.3.3 The Cosmic Disposition: Fate, Nature, and Providence	64
4.3.4 The Cosmic Constitution and a Rational Animal's End	67

5. The Law	71
5.1 The Definition of Law as Nature's Right Word	71
5.1.1 Law as a Prescriptive and Prohibitive Body	71
5.1.2 Fate and Seed-Description (Logos Spermatikos)	74
5.2 Justice and the Cosmic Disposition	75
5.3 Are Stoic Laws Rules?	77
5.4 Experience, Concepts, and Patterns in Nature	82
6. Inhabitants and Citizens	89
6.1 Reason as a Prerequisite for Citizenship	89
6.2 Gods	91
6.2.1 Hierarchies in the World State	91
6.2.2 Is God a Citizen Too?	93
6.3 Sages	94
6.3.1 Right Reason	95
6.3.2 Reason Twisted	98
6.4 Fools	100
6.4.1 Women	100
6.4.2 Slaves	101
6.4.3 Exiles, Rustics, and Feral Persons	104
6.4.4 Children	105
6.5 Eros	108
6.5.1 The Erotic Efforts of Sages	108
6.5.2 Eros and Concord	111
6.6 Becoming a Citizen: A Rational Animal's End and the State Objective	111
7. Particular Polities	117
7.1 Utopia or Reality?	117
7.1.1 The Reality of the Common Law	117
7.1.2 Individual Polities and the Primacy of the Law	119
7.2 Objectives of Particular States and Best Constitutions	120
7.3 The Origin of Particular States	123
7.3.1 The Earliest Humans: "Fresh from the Gods"	123
7.3.2 Technology	124
7.3.3 A Golden Age or a Lucky Age?	126
7.3.4 Early Political Philosophy	130
7.3.5 Tyrants and Legislation	132

8. The Early Stoics and the Question of Political Practice	135
8.1 Is Zeno's Society of Equals a Democracy?	135
8.2 The Early Stoics and the City State	137
8.2.1 Historical Context and Theory	137
8.2.2 Early Stoics in Politics	140
8.3 The Early Stoics' Attitudes to Leagues and Monarchies	143
8.3.1 Engagement with Monarchy and Monarchs	144
8.3.2 Distance and Mediation	145
8.4 Stoic Discussions of Political Involvement	148
8.4.1 Adaptive Agency	148
8.4.2 In Defense of a Contemplative Life: The Evidence in Seneca	151
8.4.3 Incurable Politics and Progressor Politics	156
8.4.4 Just by Nature	158
8.4.5 Philosophy as Legislation	160
9. Stoicism in Rome	165
9.1 The Middle Stoics	165
9.2 Imperial Stoics: The Emperor	169
9.2.1 The Body Politic in Seneca's De Clementia	169
9.2.2 Epictetus on the Emperor as a Source of Enslaving Desires	172
9.2.3 Marcus Aurelius	175
9.2.3.1 Marcus Conceptualizes His Status as Emperor	175
9.2.3.2 A Sociable and Political Animal in the World State	177
9.2.3.3 Ruling in Rome	182
9.3 Imperial Stoics: The Senate	184
9.3.1 The Stoic Opposition and Marcus' Political Dream	184
9.3.2 Seneca's Aristocracy of Virtue	186
9.3.2.1 A Change of Mind	187
9.3.2.2 A New Start	190
9.3.2.3 A New Elite of Equals: The Network of Progressor Friends	192
10. A Few Modern Receptions and Parallels	201
10.1 Justus Lipsius	201
10.1.1 Public Evils and Contingent Laws in De Constantia	202

10.1.2	Human Selfishness and Protective State Power in the Politica	205
10.2	Immanuel Kant and Modern Cosmopolitanism	209
10.2.1	Anthropology	210
10.2.2	State, Law, and Institutions	214
10.3	Martha Nussbaum's Capabilities Approach	216
10.3.1	Human Dignity and Human Rights	217
10.3.2	Capabilities vs. Functions: Chrysippus' Modal Logic	221
10.3.3	Quietistic Disregard for Human Vulnerability?	224
10.3.4	The Common Law, Cultural Diversity, and Minimal Consensus	226
10.3.5	In Conclusion: Radical Evil or Innate Love of Others?	228
	Literature	231
	Index of Primary Sources Cited	247
	Index of Selected Greek and Latin Terms	261