

Contents

Preface	ix
Acronyms	x
1. Clarifying the problem	1
I. Introduction	1
II. A multifaceted global proliferation problem	2
III. Arms control negotiations: a record of partial success	3
IV. Arms control or disarmament?	4
V. Measuring success in arms control	6
VI. Conclusion	7
Notes and references	8
2. A framework for analysis	10
I. Introduction	10
II. Obstacles arising out of great power confrontation	13
III. Ideological conflict and ideologically influenced perceptions	20
IV. Psychological obstacles to agreement	22
V. The momentum of weapon technology	23
VI. Domestic obstacles to arms control	24
VII. Obstacles in the negotiating process	26
VIII. Arms control talks promote the arms race	31
IX. Multilateral negotiations	33
X. Factors promoting success	34
XI. Conclusion	38
Notes and references	38
Table 2.1. Obstacles to agreement between the USA and the USSR	15
Table 2.2. Factors promoting agreement	35
3. The test ban talks: 1958–63	42
I. Introduction	42
II. Summary history of the test ban talks, 1958–63	43
III. Was a CTB possible?	56
IV. The real purpose of the talks	59

V.	Obstacles to agreement	61
VI.	Did the PTBT promote the arms race?	73
VII.	Conclusion	74
	Notes and references	75
4.	Negotiating a CTB	79
I.	Introduction	79
II.	Talks in the Geneva Committee on Disarmament	79
III.	Mounting pressure in the USA for a CTB	81
IV.	The 1974 Threshold Test Ban Treaty	82
V.	The Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty	84
VI.	The trilateral talks on a CTB 1977–80	86
VII.	Obstacles to agreement	91
VIII.	Conclusion	99
	Notes and references	100
5.	SALT I: success and failure	105
I.	Introduction	105
II.	Summary history of SALT I	105
III.	Obstacles to agreement	113
IV.	Other types of difficulty	119
V.	Obstacles in the negotiating process	124
VI.	Did SALT I promote the arms race?	130
VII.	Conclusion	132
	Notes and references	133
6.	SALT II: the obstacles multiply	137
I.	Introduction	137
II.	Prelude to the Vladivostok Accord	137
III.	Failure to sign a treaty: 1974–76	146
IV.	The final phase: 1977–79	150
V.	Conclusions	167
	Notes and references	168
7.	INF and START: 1981–83	172
I.	Introduction	172
II.	The failure of the missile talks: 1981–83	173
III.	The INF talks	175
IV.	The START negotiations	183
V.	Obstacles to agreement	187
VI.	Obstacles in the negotiating process	196

VII. Conclusions	200
Notes and references	202
8. INF and START: 1985–89	205
I. Introduction	205
II. Brighter prospects for an INF treaty: 1985–87	205
III. Delays over the START negotiations	211
IV. Prelude to the INF Treaty	212
V. Obstacles to agreement	218
VI. Obstacles in the negotiating process	222
VII. The factors promoting an INF agreement	225
Notes and references	227
9. Multilateral talks in Europe	230
I. Introduction	230
II. The MBFR talks	231
III. Why did MBFR fail?	241
IV. Did the MBFR negotiations promote a military buildup?	246
V. Limited success for arms control in the CSCE	247
VI. Agreement in the CSCE and CDE but not in MBFR: why?	251
VII. Epilogue: from MBFR to CFE	254
Notes and references	255
10. Arms control failure: why?	257
I. Introduction	257
II. Problems inherent in the negotiating process	257
III. Central reasons why arms control negotiations fail	269
Notes and references	277
11. Arms control success: how?	278
I. Introduction	278
II. Political conditions for success	279
III. Management of arms control negotiations	282
III. Substance of arms control negotiations	291
IV. Conclusion	299
Notes and references	300
Index	302