

Contents

Chapter 1
Introductory Remarks
Fred Plum and Donald W. Pfaff	1
Part I
Special Ethical Problems in Dealing with Neural and Behavioral Disorders
Chapter 2
Making and Using Psychiatric Diagnoses: Ethical Issues
Jean Endicott	11
Chapter 3
Problems of Informed Consent with the Cognitively Impaired
Ruth Macklin	23
Chapter 4
Treatment Refusals: Autonomy, Paternalism, and the “Best Interest” of the Patient
Ruth Macklin	41
Chapter 5
Ethical Considerations in the Care of Unconscious Patients
David E. Levy	57

Chapter 6
Legal Aspects of Ethics in the Neural and Behavioral Sciences
H. Richard Beresford	73
Part II
Studies of the Biology and Neurology of Behavior:
Implications for Ethics
Chapter 7
Out with the "Old" and in with the "New"—The Evolution and Refinement of Sociobiological Theory
Arthur L. Caplan	91
Chapter 8
Some Paradoxical Goals of Cells and Organisms: The Role of the MHC
Jerram L. Brown	111
Chapter 9
Motives and Metaphors in Considerations of Animal Nature
Colin Beer	125
Chapter 10
Neurobiological Origins of Human Values
Donald W. Pfaff	141
Index	153