

Contents

1.	Conventional Macro Models and Aggregate Economic Choice	1
	An Overview of the Book	8
2.	The Basic Structure	12
	Government Sector	14
	Household Sector	17
	Nonfinancial Business Sector	19
	Private Financial Sector	21
	Central Bank	23
	The Open-Economy Model	23
3.	The Household Sector in the Simple Model	27
	Formal Model of the Household Sector	27
	Budget Constraints	27
	Present Utility Function	33
	First-Order Necessary Conditions	43
	Household Sector's Demand and Supply Functions	47
4.	The Nonfinancial Business Sector in the Simple Model	57
	The Anticipated Current Revenue Function	62
	Next Period's Anticipated Revenue Function	71
	The Business Sector's Optimizing Problem at Time t	73
	First-order Necessary Conditions	74
	Conditions for Liquidation	79
	Response Functions of the Business Sector as a Going Concern	80
5.	National Product and the Dynamic Properties of the Simple Model	92
	Derivation of Walras' Law in a Setting without Market-Clearing	94
	The Discrepancy between the Business Sector's Desired and Actual Cash Balances	95
	National Income and Product	95
	Specification of the Complete Model	96
	Dynamic Properties of the Model	98
	Some Implications of the Model	100
	An Exogenous Increase in the Household Sector's Initial Cash Balances	101
	An Exogenous Increase in the Business Sector's Initial Cash Balances	103
	An Increase in c_t^{hd} Accompanied by a Decrease in $Cu_t^{hd} + 1$	104
	An Increase in c_t^{hd} Accompanied by a Decrease in $Sn_t^{hd} + 1$	104
	An Increase in $Cu_t^{hd} + 1$ Accompanied by a Decrease in $Sn_t^{hd} + 1$	104

The Conventional Approach to Introducing Government Activity.	104
Balanced-Budget Increase in c^g_t	109
Money-Financed Increase in c^g_t	112
Money-Financed Decrease in Taxes.	113
6. Government Activity and Aggregate Economic Choice	115
Introduction	115
The Government Sector.	116
Government Demand Functions for Current Labor Services and Current Consumption Goods.	122
Government's Demands for Workers and for Next Period's Privately-Produced Commodities	124
The Menu of Choices for Next Period's Government Production and Taxes.	124
Summary of Government Activity.	126
Modifications of Household Sector Behavior	127
First-Order Necessary Conditions.	129
The Household Sector's Demand and Supply Functions.	130
Modifications of Business Sector Behavior.	138
National Product and Economic Fluctuations	140
Walras' Law in a Non-Walrasian Model.	145
National Income and Product	146
Specification of the Reduced- and Final-Forms	147
Some Implications of the Model	150
7. The Government Sector in the Expanded Model	156
Introduction	156
Formal Model of Government Activity.	157
The Government's Demand Functions for Current Labor Services and Current Consumption Goods	168
The Menu of Choices for Next Period's Government Production and Taxes and the Government's Demand Functions for Next Period	170
8. Household Sector Behavior in the Expanded Model	178
Formal Model of Household Behavior	178
First-Order Conditions	191
Household Sector's Decision Variables.	197
9. The Nonfinancial Business Sector in the Expanded Model.	212
Formal Model of the Nonfinancial Business Sector	214

Anticipated Current Sales Revenue	219
Anticipated Future Sales Revenue	226
Estimated Demand for Nonfinancial Business Sector Equity	229
Maximizing the Nonfinancial Business Sector's Present Value	230
First-Order Necessary Conditions for a Maximum	230
Response Functions of the Nonfinancial Business Sector.	234
10. The Private Financial Sector	249
Formal Model of the Private Financial Sector	251
Next Period's Anticipated Dividends	261
Private Financial Sector's Objective Function	264
Implications for Private Financial Sector Behavior	265
11. The Central Bank	282
Formal Model of Central Bank Behavior	285
Answers to Criticisms of Profit-Maximization and a Reliance Upon Discounting	288
Conclusion.	292
12. The Complete Model of a Closed Economy	294
Formal Specification of the Complete Model	301
The Non-Walrasian Counterpart to Walras' Law	306
Actual Quantities Traded and End-of- Period Stocks	309
National Income and Product	316
Long-Run Properties	322
Effects of a Technological Advance in Government-Goods Production	324
A Technological Advance in the Nonfinancial Business Sector's Production Function	327
A Technological Advance in Next-Period's Household Production Function	329
13. Model of a Large Open Economy	331
The Government Sector	332
The Household Sector	344
The Nonfinancial Business Sector	352
The Private Depository Institutions.	368
The Complete Model of a Large Open Economy	399

Impacts of Changes in Selected Foreign Parameters upon the Domestic Economy	414
14. Conclusion	424