

Contents

Chapter I	Introduction	1
1.1	General background	1
1.2	True capital flight versus intermediated capital flight	2
1.3	The means of financing capital flight	5
1.4	Conduits involved in capital flight transactions	11
1.5	Problem setting and plan of study	16
Chapter II	Defining capital flight	20
2.1	Introduction	20
2.2	The relevance of the stage of development and type of transactor in assessing the concept of capital flight	22
2.3	Is capital flight only an illegal transaction?	25
2.4	The national utility concept of capital flight	27
2.5	Capital flight defined as a sub-set of total external claims	34
2.5.1	Capital flight defined as the violation of a social contract	34
2.5.2	Capital flight defined as a response to asymmetric risk	35
2.5.3	Motivation based definition of capital flight	39
2.6	Conclusion	41

Chapter III	Measuring capital flight - An evaluation of estimating procedures	43
3.1	Introduction	43
3.2	Broad measure of capital flight	44
3.2.1	A summary presentation of the scale of capital flight	48
3.2.2	Data problems	52
3.2.3	Evaluation of estimating procedure	55
3.3	Measuring capital flight as a response to asymmetric risk	57
3.3.1	Evaluation of estimating procedure	60
3.3.2	Methodological and data problems	61
3.3.3	Conclusion	73
3.4	An alternative procedure based on the factors motivating capital flight	74
3.4.1	Foreign transaction balances	76
3.4.2	Portfolio investments	81
3.4.3	Dummy variables	82
Chapter IV	Case study 1: Measuring capital flight from the Philippines (1971-85)	83
4.1	Introduction	83
4.2	The political structure	84
4.2.1	Political structure, external debt and capital flight	86
4.2.2	The government's role in financial markets	89
4.2.3	Government intervention and the growth of monopoly in the sphere of productive activity	94
4.3	The building of a crisis	96
4.4	Motivation based determination of external claims	108

Chapter V	Case study 2: Measuring capital flight from India (1976-85)	121
5.1	Introduction	121
5.2	Corruption, bribery, and capital flight	123
5.3	India's economic performance	130
5.4	Motivation based determination of gross capital outflows	141
Chapter VI	Conclusion	153
Appendix A	Definition, sources and adjustment of data	156
Appendix B	Various debt and capital flight measures for selected Asian countries	160
Appendix C	Number of presidential decrees and letters of instruction classified by economic activity	165
References		168