

---

Contents

---

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| IntroductionLinda Williams  | 1   |
| <hr/>  |     |
| Vision and the Apparatus   |     |
| <hr/>  |     |
| Modernizing VisionJonathan Crary  | 23  |
| Phenomenology and the Film ExperienceVivian Sobchack  | 36  |
| Cinema and the Postmodern ConditionAnne Friedberg   | 59  |
| <hr/>  |     |
| Historians View Spectators   |     |
| <hr/>  |     |
| Cinematic Spectatorship before the Apparatus:The Public Taste for Reality in Fin-de-Siècle ParisVanessa R. Schwartz | 87  |
| An Aesthetic of Astonishment:Early Film and the (In)Credulous SpectatorTom Gunning                                  | 114 |
| Early Cinema, Late Cinema: Transformationsof the Public SphereMiriam Hansen   | 134 |
| <hr/>  |     |
| Viewing Antitheses   |     |
| <hr/>  |     |
| Pardoxes of SpectatorshipJudith Mayne   | 155 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| The Eye of HorrorCarol J. Clover  | 184 |
| Spectatorship as Drag: The Act of Viewingand Classic Horror CinemaRhona J. Berenstein | 231 |
| Annotated Bibliography   | 271 |
| Contributors   | 279 |
| Index  | 281 |