

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Editor's Preface	xi
Introduction: Nazi Responses to Popular Protests in the Reich Nathan Stoltzfus and Brigit Maier-Katkin	1
CHAPTER 1. Aspects of German Procedures in the Holocaust Gerhard L. Weinberg	10
CHAPTER 2. Women and Protest in Wartime Nazi Germany Jill Stephenson	18
CHAPTER 3. The Demonstrations in Support of the Protestant Provincial Bishop Hans Meiser: A Successful Protest Against the Nazi Regime? Christiane Kuller	38
CHAPTER 4. The Catholic Church, Bishop von Galen, and 'Euthanasia' Winfried Süß	55
CHAPTER 5. The Possibilities of Protest in the Third Reich: The Witten Demonstration in Context Julia S. Torrie	76
CHAPTER 6. The "Legend" of Women's Resistance in the Rosenstrasse Katharina von Kellenbach	106
CHAPTER 7. Auschwitz, the "Fabrik-Aktion," Rosenstrasse: A Plea for a Change of Perspective Joachim Neander	125
CHAPTER 8. The 1943 Rosenstrasse Protest and the Churches Antonia Leugers	143
CHAPTER 9. Protest and Aftermath: Placing Protest in the History of Nazi Germany Nathan Stoltzfus	177

Afterword: Protest and Resistance David Clay Large	209
Appendix 1. The Situation of the “Mischlinge” in Germany, Mid-March 1943 by Gerhard Lehfeldt	223
Appendix 2. Decree Regarding the Removal of Jews from Frankfurt/Oder Factories, February 24, 1943	229
Appendix 3. April 1, 1943, OSS Document Identifying Protest in Berlin with the Interruption of Deportation of Jews	233
Appendix 4. Translated Excerpts from the Diaries of Joseph Goebbels, Die Tagebücher von Joseph Goebbels , ed. Elke Frölich (Munich: K.G. Saur)	235
Appendix 5. Excerpts from testimonies of women who protested for their Jewish husbands in response to a request from the Berlin Bureau of Reparations, 1955.	241
Appendix 6. Excerpts of Individual Sections and Paragraphs from Legal Texts and Ordinances (1933–1941)	243
Appendix 7. RSHA Guidelines for Deportation to Auschwitz, Berlin, February 20, 1943	247
Appendix 8. Documents of the SS at Auschwitz from early March 1943 indicating their “pull” for workers from Berlin and their expectation that more working Jews (intermarried) would be sent from Berlin	251
Appendix 9. Documents in response to the Witten Protest and from 1944 indicating Hitler’s continuing refusal to use force against “racial” civilians who refused to follow regime guidelines for evacuating bombed areas.	255
Appendix 10. Excerpts from the recent German press representing controversies about public protest by ordinary Germans in the Third Reich.	259
Selected Bibliography	263
Index	267