

Table of Contents

“Innocent Ovens“

Introduction by Volkhard Knigge 5

1

Topf & Sons – A Perfectly Normal Company 13

The Company 13

The Topf Brothers 14

The Employees 15

The Products 16

Kurt Prüfer, Crematorium Construction Engineer 19

Cremation in Germany 20

The Cremation Act of 1934 21

2

The Concentration Camp Business – Accomplices and Accessories in the Company 23

First Orders from the SS 25

The Corpse-Burning Practises in the Camps 28

Auschwitz-Birkenau – New Challenges 31

Accomplices and Accessories to the Crimes 39

3

The Death Factories in Operation 46

The Auschwitz-Birkenau Crematoria 49

Testimony from the Death Factories 51

4

Topf & Sons as Partners of the SS – Initiatives and Advantages 56

The Patent Application 58

Squabbles – Self-Confidence – Personal Advantages 59

Kurt Prüfer's Resignation – A Missed Opportunity 61

Ever Ready to Serve – Unendingly 64

Incineration Ovens: Manufacturers – Locations – Types 65

5

After the War: Preservation of Evidence – Memories – Denials 68

Removal of Evidence and Preservation of Evidence in Auschwitz 69

Between Memory and Denial 71

Initial Investigations into Topf & Sons 71

Four Engineers in Soviet Custody 72

Ludwig Topf Casts Himself in the Role of Victim 73

Ernst-Wolfgang Topf in the West 74

Topf & Sons in the German Democratic Republic 77

Erfurt – The Former Factory Site and its Future 78

J. A. Topf & Sons – Company Chronicle 78

Credits 80

Sources 81

The Research and Exhibition Project 82