

Contents

Foreword	xiv
Preface	xvi
Acronyms, abbreviations and conventions	xx

Part I. Introduction and summary

1. Why discuss US withdrawal? 3

Jane M. O. Sharp

I. Introduction	3
II. The US commitment to the defence of Europe	4
III. Incentives and disincentives for West European autonomy	12
IV. Perceptions of a reduced WTO threat	18
V. What role for the USA in Europe after the cold war?	20
VI. Summary	27
Notes and references	28
Figure 1.1. US military forces in NATO Europe, 1945–90	6

2. Summary and conclusions 34

Jane M. O. Sharp

I. Economic issues	34
II. Assessing the military mission gaps	42
III. Conclusion	48
Notes and references	50

Part II: Economic implications of a US military withdrawal from Europe

3. US perspectives on the economic costs and benefits of a withdrawal of US troops and facilities from Europe 53

Alice C. Maroni

I. Introduction	53
II. Economic implications of withdrawal of US European-deployed troops	56
III. Concluding observations	70
Notes and references	71
Table 3.1. Incremental cost of operating US Army and Air Force units in Europe, as of 1986	58

Table 3.2.	Estimate of costs/savings of withdrawing all US Army and Air Force units from Europe	61
Table 3.3.	Direct cost of forces deployed in Europe, FY 1989	64
Table 3.4.	Direct US defence expenditures abroad for foreign goods and services in NATO Europe, 1987	65
Table 3.5.	Percentage cost of US European-deployed forces, FYs 1974–82	66
Table 3.6.	US–European NATO defence trade balance summary, 1987	67
Table 3.7.	US–European NATO balance of trade summary, 1984–86	68
4.	The impact of a withdrawal on US investments in Europe	74
	Joseph R. Higdon and Paul J. Friedrich
	I. Introduction	74
	II. US investment in Europe	75
	III. Gorbachev's challenge	76
	IV. 'Europe 1992' demands US business presence	77
	V. Why US troops in Europe?	78
Table 4.1.	Majority-owned European affiliates with greater than 50 per cent ownership by a US parent, 1985–86	75
Table 4.2.	European affiliates with greater than 10 per cent ownership by a US parent, 1985–86	76
Table 4.3.	Majority-owned European affiliates with greater than 50 per cent ownership by a US parent, 1986	77
5.	The economics of US bases and facilities in Western Europe	79
	David Greenwood
	I. Introduction	79
	II. The US presence in Europe	81
	III. The economic impact of European-deployed forces	89
	IV. The economics of withdrawal	91
	V. The economics of compensation	93
	Notes and references	95
Table 5.1.	US front-line units in Europe, 1987–88	82
Table 5.2.	US active duty military personnel in Europe, 31 December 1987	84
Table 5.3.	US bases and facilities in Europe: population statistics 1987–88 (estimates)	85
Table 5.4.	US bases and facilities in Europe: financial statistics, 1987–88 (estimates)	87
Table 5.5.	DOD direct defence expenditures abroad for goods and services, 1983–87	88
6.	The economic impact of the stationing of US forces in the Federal Republic of Germany	97
	Hartmut Bebermeyer and Christian Thimann
	I. Introduction	97
	II. The US force presence as an economic factor	99

III.	Costs to the Federal Republic of Germany	107
IV.	Benefits to the West German economy	109
V.	Cost-benefit analysis	112
VI.	Economic implications of a withdrawal	114
	Notes and references	117
Table 6.1.	US active forces in the Federal Republic of Germany, 1986-87	98
Table 6.2.	US facilities in the Federal Republic of Germany, 1974	99
Table 6.3.	Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) direct sales in the FRG, FY 1987	102
Table 6.4.	Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) payments to West German suppliers, 1988	103
Table 6.5.	Average 1987 income of USAREUR military personnel, by rank	104
Table 6.6.	Average 1987 income of USAFE military personnel, by rank	105
Table 6.7.	Per capita incomes and D-mark expenditures as shares of total income of US military and civil personnel in the FRG, 1986-88	106
Table 6.8.	Cost-benefit balance of the US force presence in the Federal Republic of Germany, 1986	113

7. Economic consequences of a withdrawal of US forces from the Benelux states 119

Sami Faltas

I.	The political setting	119
II.	The US military presence	122
III.	The impact of withdrawal	122
IV.	Conclusion	130
	Notes and References	130
Table 7.1.	US defence personnel in the Benelux countries (incl. NATO staff) before (1988) and after withdrawal	124
Table 7.2.	Personal incomes of US defence personnel in the Benelux countries, 1988	127
Table 7.3.	Economic costs and benefits to the Benelux countries of a withdrawal of US personnel and facilities (options A and B)	128

8. Costs and benefits to the United Kingdom of the US military presence 132

Keith Hartley and Nicholas Hooper

I.	Introduction	132
II.	US forces and British defence	132
III.	Assumptions	137
IV.	Evidence	140
V.	The economic impact of British military expenditure	144
VI.	European co-operation	148
	Notes and references	152
Table 8.1.	United Kingdom defence expenditures and manpower, 1987	134
Table 8.2.	Major US military installations in the United Kingdom, 1987-88	135
Table 8.3.	Costs and benefits to the UK of the US force presence, 1987-88	136

Table 8.4.	UK local (base area) and regional unemployment rates, December 1987	142
Table 8.5.	Defence and the British economy	145
Table 8.6.	The economic impact of British defence expenditure	147
Table 8.7.	Immediate effects of a US withdrawal	151

9. The economic impact of a US military withdrawal from NATO's Northern Flank 154

Simon Duke

I.	Introduction	154
II.	The base agreements	156
III.	The economic impact of a US withdrawal	165
IV.	Summary	174
	Notes and references	175
Table 9.1.	US and Danish areas of financial responsibility for bilateral and joint NATO defence arrangements in Iceland	158
Table 9.2.	US and Icelandic areas of financial responsibility for defence arrangements in Iceland	161
Table 9.3.	US and Norwegian areas of financial responsibility for bilateral and joint defence arrangements in Norway	164
Table 9.4.	Personnel at US military installations in Greenland, 1986	168
Table 9.5.	IDF personnel and dependants, 1984-87	169
Table 9.6.	NATO and US cost shares for constructions at Keflavík AB, 1984	170

10. Economic aspects of the US military presence in Spain 179

José Molero

I.	Introduction	179
II.	Historical evolution of the military agreements and treaties signed by Spain and the United States, 1953-82	180
III.	The 1982 Agreement	187
IV.	Approach to an economic evaluation of the US military bases in Spain	191
V.	Conclusion: towards a new phase of US-Spanish military relations	198
	Notes and references	201
Table 10.1.	US economic aid to Spain based on 1953 pacts, FYs 1953-58	182
Table 10.2.	US aid to Spain, 1953-63	183
Table 10.3.	Significance of US aid to Spanish foreign trade, 1953-58	184
Table 10.4.	US military and economic aid to Spain, 1970-74	187
Table 10.5.	US loans and grants obligations and loan authorizations to Spain, FY 1946-85	190
Table 10.6.	Number of personnel at US bases in Spain, 1987	192
Table 10.7.	US running costs for installations in Spain, 1985-86	192
Table 10.8.	Committed Spanish Ministry of Defence purchases of US military equipment, 1983-87.	193

Table 10.9.	Main Spanish arms procurement programmes involving US compensation, 31 December 1986	194
Table 10.10.	US compensation to Spanish industry, 31 December 1986	195
Table 10.11.	Distribution of US compensation to Spanish industry by sector, 31 December 1986	196
Table 10.12.	Spanish arms industry technology transfer contracts with foreign firms, 1974–84	197

11. Costs and benefits of the US military presence in Portugal 204

Jane M. O. Sharp

I.	Portugal's security needs	204
II.	US interests in Portugal	204
III.	Portuguese commitments to NATO	209
IV.	Modernizing the defence-industrial base	211
V.	Conclusion	214
	Notes and references	215
Table 11.1.	US public aid to Portugal, 1975–1986	207
Table 11.2.	Activities of Fundação Luso-Americano para o Desenvolvimento (FLAD), 1985–86	208

12. Costs and benefits of the US military bases in Greece 218

Athanasios G. Platias

I.	Introduction	218
II.	Political aspects of Greek–US relations	219
III.	Economic aspects of Greek–US relations	226
IV.	Implications for Greece of a US withdrawal	238
	Notes and references	239
Table 12.1.	Military construction appropriations for US facilities in Greece,	226
Table 12.2.	Hellenikon AB expenditure in the economy of Athens	227
Table 12.3.	Value of real estate utilized by major US bases in Greece	227
Table 12.4.	Total NATO defence spending by country as percentage of GDP, 1985–86	228
Table 12.5.	Greece's defence expenditure as percentage of GDP, 1975–85	229
Table 12.6.	Total NATO active duty military and civilian manpower as percentage of total population, by country, 1985–86	230
Table 12.7.	NATO military manpower as percentage of population, by country, 1985–86	231
Table 12.8.	Total military and civilian defence personnel of the NATO countries as percentage of the labour force, by country, 1980–85	232
Table 12.9.	Changes in the distribution of countries supplying arms to Greece, 1965–85	233
Table 12.10.	US aid (grants and loans) to Greece, 1974–88	236
Table 12.11.	Percentage of new FMS loans indirectly devoted to the repayment of old FMS loans, 1981–85	237
Table 12.12.	Greek obligations for FMS repayment, 1987–96	238

Table 12.13. Impact for Greece of a US military withdrawal	239
Figure 12.1. Planned US military assistance to Greece under the 1988 FMS Foreign Assistance Program	234

13. The economic costs and benefits of US–Turkish military relations 243

Saadet Deger

I. Introduction and background	243
II. Three questions about Turkish security	244
III. The tangled web: Turkish–US relations	254
IV. Turkey with and without the US forces: economic costs and benefits	259
V. Implications of a US withdrawal	266
VI. Concluding remarks	271
Notes and references	272
Table 13.1. Land area and exposed borders of European NATO allies	246
Table 13.2. Soviet economic aid to less developed countries (LDCs), 1954–79	247
Table 13.3. Estimated defence burden of a Turkish professional armed force, 1985–87	250
Table 13.4. Growth rate of real military expenditure for the United States, European NATO and Turkey, 1980–87	251
Table 13.5. NATO and WTO force comparison, 1987	252
Table 13.6. Turkey's debt repayment schedule under US Foreign Military Sales, FYs 1985–90	258
Table 13.7. Number of personnel at US military installations in Turkey, 1987	260
Table 13.8. US gross annual expenditure for outlays associated with defence arrangements with Turkey, 1986–87 average	261
Table 13.9. Annual financial costs and benefits to Turkey relating to the US military presence, 1986–87 average	263
Table 13.10. Annual financial benefit to the United States of payments on military sales and loans to Turkey, 1986–87 average	264
Table 13.11. Incremental or additional running costs per year to Turkey of maintaining bases after a US withdrawal (option A)	265
Table 13.12. Cost comparison of a US withdrawal under options A and B	267

14. Economic costs and benefits of US military bases and facilities in Italy 274

Jennifer Sims

I. Introduction	274
II. The US military presence: status and economic impact	275
III. Implications of a US withdrawal for Italy's defence costs	283
IV. Conclusion	296
Notes and references	297
Table 14.1. USA–Italy defence balance of trade summary, 30 September 1986	280
Table 14.2. Value of ROICC-controlled construction in Italy, 1982–86	281
Table 14.3. NATO and WTO land forces in north-eastern Italy, 1988	283

Table 14.4.	NATO and WTO air forces in the southern region, 1988	285
Table 14.5.	The Italian defence budget, 1982–84	291
Table 14.6.	The Italian defence budget as percentage of GDP and total state budget, 1975–84	292
Table 14.7.	Italian defence expenditure per capita: selected years, 1970–86	293

Part III: Military implications of a US military withdrawal from Europe

15. US withdrawal and NATO's Northern Flank: impact and implications 303

Steven E. Miller

I.	Introduction	303
II.	The USA and the Northern Flank: bases and other arrangements	304
III.	Defending the Northern Flank without US involvement	313
IV.	The United States and the defence of the Baltic Approaches	326
V.	Conclusion	332
	Notes and references	334
Figure 15.1.	The Nordic Flank	306
Figure 15.2.	Northern Norway	315
Figure 15.3.	The Baltic region	328

16. Mission gaps in Central Europe 349

Hilmar Linnenkamp

I.	Introduction	349
II.	The structure of the analysis	350
III.	Political choices: gaps in deterrence	351
IV.	Military choices: gaps in forward defence	355
V.	Europe without US troops: the zero-based assessment	365
VI.	Postscript	366
	Notes and references	367

17. The military implications for NATO of a US withdrawal from the southern region 369

George E. Thibault

I.	Purpose and approach	369
II.	Commander's strategic estimate	370
III.	The traditional military mission gaps	384
IV.	The functional military gaps	390
V.	Conclusion	397
	Notes and references	398
Figure 17.1.	Major US military installations on the Azores	372
Figure 17.2.	Major US military installations in Spain	374

Figure 17.3. Major US military installations in Italy	376
Figure 17.4. Major US military installations in Greece	379
Figure 17.5. Major US military installations in Turkey	381

18. The contribution of US C³I to the defence of NATO 400

Paul Stares and John Pike

I. Introduction	400
II. Intelligence assets	402
III. Communications assets	418
IV. Impact of a US withdrawal	421
V. Conclusion	424
Notes and references	424

Part IV. Coping with a US withdrawal

19. Could NATO cope without US forces? 431

Martin Farndale

I. Introduction	431
II. The threat	433
III. Meeting the threat	436
IV. Filling the gaps	440
V. Changes in NATO strategy and operational concepts	450
VI. Command and control	453
VII. Conclusion	454
Notes and references	455

20. The United States coping without bases in Europe 456

Robert E. Harkavy

I. Introduction	456
II. Bases for strategic nuclear forces	459
III. Conventional out-of-area problems after a US withdrawal	473
IV. Horizontal escalation involving crises arising outside of Europe or the Persian Gulf	476
V. Ways in which the United States can compensate for loss of access to Europe: general approaches	477
VI. Summary	478
Notes and references	481

Table 20.1. US satellite control and receiver sites in Europe, 1987	465
---	-----

Table 20.2. US signals intelligence collection sites in Europe, by country, 1985	469
--	-----

About the contributors	487
-------------------------------	-----

Index	491
--------------	-----