

Contents

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| Acknowledgements   | vii        |
| About the author   | ix         |
| Introduction: About Doing Sensory Ethnography                                       | xi         |
| Part I Rethinking ethnography through the senses                                    | 1   |
| 1 Situating sensory ethnography: from academia to intervention                             | 3          |
| 2 Principles for sensory ethnography: perception, place, knowing, memory and imagination   | 25         |
| 3 Preparing for sensory research: practical and orientation issues                         | 51         |
| Part II Sensory ethnography in practice   | 71  |
| 4 The sensoriality of the interview: rethinking personal encounters through the senses     | 73         |
| 5 Sensory research through participation: from observation to intervention                 | 95         |
| 6 Mediated sensory ethnography: doing and recording sensory ethnography in a digital world | 117        |
| Part III Interpreting and representing sensory knowing                              | 139 |
| 7 Interpreting multisensory research: organising, analysing and meaning making             | 141        |
| 8 Representing sensory ethnography: communicating, arguing and the non-representational    | 163        |
| Afterword: Imagining sensory futures: ethnography, design and future studies               | 189        |
| References   | 195        |
| Index  | 209        |