

Contents

| | |
|---|------------|
| List of Figures and Tables | 7 |
| Acknowledgements | 9 |
| Glossary of German and Medical Terms | 11 |
| | |
| Introduction | 13 |
| Midwifery in Leipzig | 14 |
| Histories of midwifery | 16 |
| Midwifery and Enlightenment | 22 |
| Time and place: Leipzig, 1650–1810 | 27 |
| Sources | 34 |
| Overview | 38 |
| | |
| Chapter One | |
| Midwifery, the City and the State Between Tradition and Reform ... | 40 |
| Regulating midwifery from the Middle Ages to the Reformation | 40 |
| From oath to instruction: midwifery regulation in Leipzig | 43 |
| Midwifery and the state | 48 |
| Reforming midwifery in Leipzig, c. 1650–1740 | 56 |
| Conclusions | 77 |
| | |
| Chapter Two | |
| The Midwifery Landscape | 81 |
| Sworn midwives | 84 |
| Beifrauen (sworn apprentices) | 96 |
| Wickelweiber (swaddling women) | 100 |
| Gassenmägde (female street servants) | 103 |
| Healers and nurses | 106 |
| Appointing midwives | 108 |
| The changing structure of the midwifery landscape | 114 |
| | |
| Chapter Three | |
| Life-Cycle, the Household Oeconomy and the Meaning of Midwifery Work | 120 |
| The data | 123 |
| Age: the demise of maturity | 125 |
| Marriage and motherhood: from matron to working mother | 132 |
| Socio-economic milieus: the artisan midwife | 136 |
| Midwifery, family and household | 147 |
| Midwifery and the household oeconomy: the forces of poverty | 153 |
| Midwifery as a family tradition | 157 |
| The social and ideological meaning of midwifery | 160 |
| Conclusions | 165 |

Chapter Four

| | |
|---|-----|
| The Moral Economy of Midwifery | 167 |
| The moral economy as a dialogue | 168 |
| Encroachment and the moral economy of early modern work | 173 |
| Patterns of encroachment | 177 |
| Conclusions | 193 |

Chapter Five

| | |
|---|-----|
| Midwives, Clients and Trust | 195 |
| The social and geographical patterns of client networks | 196 |
| Midwifery: a matter of trust | 201 |
| Mistrust: midwives, illegitimacy and infanticide | 207 |
| Defending a clientele, defining a client | 210 |
| Conclusions | 214 |

Chapter Six

| | |
|--|-----|
| Midwives, Medical Men and Clients: Demarcating the Parameters of Midwifery Practice | 216 |
| Defining midwifery in medical discourses | 219 |
| Childbed maladies and childbed practitioners: the parameters of midwifery practice | 222 |
| Midwives, Accoucheurs and the power of the ‘patient’ | 228 |
| The practice of municipal man-midwifery | 230 |
| ‘Natural’ and ‘unnatural’ births | 235 |
| Turning point? Booking the Accoucheur | 242 |
| Conclusions | 246 |

Chapter Seven

| | |
|--|-----|
| The ‘Difficult Birth’ of Clinical Midwifery | 248 |
| Maternity hospitals in Germany and Europe | 249 |
| The Stadtaccoucheur plans a ‘Hebammeninstitut’ | 252 |
| Midwifery in the lazarette | 255 |
| Renewing plans for a ‘Hebammeninstitut’ | 259 |
| The Triesches Institut | 267 |
| Conclusions | 269 |

| | |
|-------------------------|-----|
| Conclusion | 271 |
|-------------------------|-----|

| | |
|-------------------------|-----|
| Appendices | 278 |
|-------------------------|-----|

| | |
|---------------------------|-----|
| Bibliography | 285 |
|---------------------------|-----|

| | |
|----------------------|-----|
| Indices | 304 |
|----------------------|-----|