

Content

Preface	9
I. Introduction
Hartmut Keil (Re)Writing American History	12
Günter H. Lenz Reconstructing American Literary Studies: History, Difference, and Synthesis	21
II. The Problem of Synthesis
Thomas Bender Wholes and Parts: The Need for Synthesis in American History	51
George M. Fredrickson Commentary on Thomas Bender's Call for Synthesis in American History	74
Horst Dippel Commentary on Thomas Bender's Call for Synthesis in American History	82
Thomas Bender Response to the Commentary	87
Kenneth Kusmer Conceptualizing Social History: Homeless Men in America, 1865-1940 as a Case Study	94
Hans-Joachim Lang From the Old Cambridge History of American Literature to the New Columbia Literary History of the United States	110

Vera Kutzinski History, Literature and the Problem of Synthesis	128
---------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

III. Gender, Race and Canon Formation

Hartwig Isernhagen "American Studies" and "New Literatures in English": (Literary-) Historical Paradigms in Conflict	145
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Henry Louis Gates jr. The Master's Pieces: On Canon-Formation and the Afro-American Tradition	169
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

John Carlos Rowe Between Politics and Poetics: Frederick Douglass and Postmodernity	192
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Renate Hof Writing Women into (Literary) History: Toward a Poetics of Gender?	211
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Sabine Bröck-Sallah Women Writing: Plotting against HIStory	225
-----------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

IV. History and Fiction

Alfred Hornung Autobiography and Democracy: The Case of Lincoln Steffens and Ida M. Tarbell	238
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Maria Diedrich Mastering American Destiny: The Ante-Bellum Slave Narrative	254
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Arno Heller Fictions of Violence in American Literature: A Probing into Psycho-Historical Criticism	268
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----

Ursula Lehmkuhl
The Historical Value and Historiographic Significance of Jane Addams' Autobiographies Twenty Years at Hull House and Second Twenty Years at Hull House	285
Juliane Mikoletzky
Fiction as a Source for Social History: The Example of German Immigrant Experience	298
 V. Postmodernism, History, New Historicism
Myra Jehlen
The Story of History Told by the New Historicism	308
Jacquelyn D. Hall and Della Pollock
History, Story, and Performance. The Making and Remaking of a Southern Cotton Mill World	324
Peter Freese
Doctorow's "Criminals of Perception", or What Has Happened to the Historical Novel?	345
Rüdiger Kunow
Without Telos or Subject? Coover's and Doctorow's Presentations of History	372
Gerhard Hoffmann
Deconstruction of Sense and Reconstruction of Sense in Postmodern American Fiction	391
Bernd Klähn
From Entropy to Chaos-Theories: Thermodynamic Models of Historical Evolution in the Novels of Thomas Pynchon and Robert Coover	418
Contributors	432