

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments.....	vi
Abstract.....	1
I. Nature of the problem.....	2
II. A look at the proposed origins.....	2
A. Role of Charles Gillett, 1971.....	2
B. How did The Big Apple arise in jazz talk?.....	3
C. William Safire: The Big Apple originated in race-track lingo and then passed into jazz speech.....	4
III. Apples as something special.....	5
A. Big apple 'big shot'.....	6
B. Wise apple, smart apple, sharp apple, and then bad apple, square apple, sad apple, apple (short for square apple).....	7
C. Pippin 'apple; excellent person or thing'.....	10
D. Comparing big apple 'big shot' and big cheese 'big shot'.....	11
E. Big red apples to the Barrymores.....	12
F. A Brooklyn use of apple	12
G. A few quotes indicating that apples were once regarded as special.....	12
H. The expression he knows his apples	13
I. Incidentally, more examples of food names being applied to people.....	14
IV. Big Apple first as 'NYC racetracks'.....	15
A. John J. Fitz Gerald as the central figure in popularizing Big Apple 'NYC racetracks'.....	15
1. Note on my collecting of examples.....	15
2. Early Big Apple quotes in the Morning Telegraph -- all from John J. Fitz Gerald.....	16
3. Chronological notes on John J. Fitz Gerald.....	20

4.	The negative evidence -- Big Apple just wasn't used much.....	24
a.	Columnists other than Fitz Gerald (and 1927, Winchell) consistently/persistently/stubbornly? avoided big apple before 1928....	24
b.	Pre-1928: Fitz Gerald himself usually avoided big apple -- The spirit was willing, but the time was not yet ripe.....	30
5.	A surprise: after 1928 the big apple started to catch on, but Fitz Gerald and The Morning Telegraph backed away from it.....	33
B.	More early attestations of 'the big apple'.....	37
1.	All in a racetrack context, except apparently Winchell's 1931 quote.....	39
2.	Walter Winchell's 1927 Big Apple attestation, noticed by Merwin Dembling -- but this big apple means big time and refers specifically to Broadway.....	45
3.	1935 attestation of Big Apple (=NYC? Broadway?)..	47
C.	Testimony of silence: No Big Apple 'NYC' in a 1928 article on the glories of NYC.....	47
D.	More testimony of silence: no Big Apple in Damon Runyon's column 'Our Town,' 1930f. in the New York Press	48
E.	And...
1.	Little Old New York again (not Big Apple).....	48
2.	Broadway as the 'Main Stem' (not 'Big Apple')....	48
F.	Still to be checked: Walter Winchell's columns.....	49
G.	Rationale for Big Apple 'NYC racetracks' -- The key is to view the big time from the perspective of the performers, not the patrons.....	49
1.	Story of Earl Sande, illustrating the dream of a jockey to reach the big time, even though 'big apple' is not used here.....	50
2.	Rest of the Earl Sande article: of interest primarily for illustrating the horseracing origin of to get a ride for the money	51

3.	Christopher Fitz Gerald -- might he have been the jockey from whom John J. Fitz Gerald picked up 'the big apple'?	52
V.	Tracing the development of the Big Apple dance	53
VI.	Contribution of the black jazz musicians	60
VII.	Once again: credit to Charles Gillett for popularizing The Big Apple , 1971 -- with background information on Mr. Gillett	61
VIII.	Appendix	64
A.	Various comments/thoughts on The Big Apple	64
1.	11/3/1988 letter from Eric Hamp	64
2.	Two letters by James T. Maher concerning the jazz use of The (Big) Apple	65
B.	Fun City 'NYC' -- courtesy of Mayor John Lindsay and journalist Dick Schaap	70
C.	Addresses for possible reference	73
D.	Reproduction of Morning Telegraph pages	75
May 3, 1921, p. 9/2-3; for first attestation of big apple , 'NYC racetracks'	75
May 3, 1922, p. 7/4; big apple at very end (snuck in the back door)	76
April 28, 1923, p. 1/2; big apple making progress; appears in first sentence	77
April 26, 1924, p. 1/4	78
April 25, 1925, p. 1/4	79
April 27, 1927, p. 10/8	80
June 15, 1928; for start of 'On The Big Apple' column; runs throughout 1928; racetrack 'the big apple' here attains its place in the sun	81
E.	A few final thoughts	82
IX.	Bibliography	83
X.	Index	98