

The Contested Quill

Literature by Women in Germany,
1770–1800

Ruth P. Dawson

Newark: University of Delaware Press
London: Associated University Presses

Contents

Acknowledgments	9
1. Introduction	13
2. Between the Spinning Wheel and the Book: Friderika Baldinger (1739–86)	37
“Essay about the Education of my Intellect”: Depicting Women’s Basic Education for Cultural Participation	41
Beyond Literacy to Scholarliness	51
Marriage as Women Experienced It	61
Concluding an Androcentric Woman’s Self-narrative	71
Writing and Desire	74
The Enlightenment Woman’s Failed Transition into Publishing	80
3. The Enabling Effect of Difference: Sophie La Roche (1730–1807)	92
Feeling Woman, Educated Man: The Uses of Empfindsamkeit	99
Representing Women’s Experience of Unhappy Marriage in La Roche’s First Novel	103
The Tale of the Beautiful Band and Another Marriage Resister	110
Menacing Mothers, Dangerous Men	116
The Monthly Pomona and Its Audiences	122
Women and the Possibilities of Literary Groups	131
After Pomona : Writing for Women, Inventorying the Self for Men	141
4. Longing for Respectability: Philippine Engelhard née Gatterer (1756–1831)	155
The Rules of Gender in the Empfindsamkeit of Sympathy	161
The Call to Poetry	168
Complex Relations with Male Mentors and Female Literary Confidantes	175
Philippine Gatterer and Gottfried August Bürger	184

Poetic Versions of the Self within the Rules	191
Reception: Formal, Informal, and Nominal	202
Productivity after Marriage	213
5. Confronting the Lords of Creation: Marianne Ehrmann (1755–95)	221
Women's Sturm und Drang , or the Empfindsamkeit of Alienation?	228
“If . . . I would become the first female rebel”	236
Disastrous Marriage and Innovative Aftermath:
Amalie As a Novel Themmatizing Divorce and the Theater	245
Mapping Misogyny: Ehrmann's Contemporary, Emilie von Berlepsch	258
A Journalist's Experiments with the Macabre and the Mundane	263
Protofeminist Overtures: Ehrmann, Berlepsch, and Others	274
6. Examining Passion: Sophie Albrecht (1757–1840)	286
Poetry of Passion	290
An Uncommon Life	295
Therese , Drama of a Woman's Love and Suicide	302
Women as Playwrights and Issues of Objective Alienation	313
Negotiating Subjectivity in Poetry About Femininity, Freedom, and Death	319
Women, Genre, and Issues of Change	328
Unraveling Marriage and the Reinterpretation of a Fairy Tale	334
From Legends to Cookbooks	341
7. Conclusion: The Contesting Discourses of the Needle and the Quill	346
Notes	353
List of abbreviations used in the notes	353
Select Bibliography	383
Index	403