

Teaching Literature

Writers and Teachers Talking

Interviews edited by Judy Kravis

CORK UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

JUDY KRAVIS
Introduction	1
GABRIEL JOSIPOVICI
What is the Point of Your Grandmother?	11
HERMIONE LEE
Free Exploratory Space	23
RON PADGETT
The Pleasures of Fried Shoes	35
ANNE WALDMAN
A Living and Breathing Organism	45
KENNETH KOCH
The Butterfly and the Rhinoceros	55
EOIN BOURKE
To Activate the Crowd	65
CIARAN COSGROVE
It's Not There for the Taking, It's There for the Making	81
EDMUND WHITE
Ed's Favourite Books	93
ANNE ENRIGHT
F slits T	105
GUY DAVENPORT
Interview by Mail	115
ANDREI CODRESCU
Passion and Possibility	133

CONTENTS

DAVID MATLIN Macbeth as Serial Killer	145
DERMOT HEALY Stories from the Beginning of the Word	157
MIKE HAYHOE Jostling with the Text	167
KATHA POLLITT Canon to the Right of Me . . .	183
ELIZABETH MACKLIN The Dark Tower of Criticism	193
LUKE GIBBONS Ventriloquism and its Voices	205
TOM MULLINS The Top Button on my Pyjamas	217
LINSEY ABRAMS To Champion the Human	229
JEAN VALENTINE What is Mayhem?	241
GRACE PALEY Different Places, Mysterious Places	251
HOWARD BARKER Education is Friction	261
JOHN GIORNO Teaching Literature is an Oxymoron	267
Acknowledgements	275