

Image and Power

Women in Fiction in the Twentieth Century

Edited by

Sarah Sceats and Gail Cunningham

Longman

London and New York

Contents

---

Acknowledgements	vii
Notes on contributors	ix
Introduction: Image and Power	3
Section 1: Usurping the male
X 1 The intellectual as heroine: reading and gender John Mepham	17
2 Writing so to speak : the feminist dystopia Elisabeth Mahoney	29
X 3 Embodying the negated: contemporary images of the female erotic Merja Makinen	41
X 4 Space, time and female genealogies: a Kristevan reading of feminist science fiction Lucie Armitt	51
Section 2: Endorsing the female
5 Seizing the reins: women, girls and horses Gail Cunningham	65
6 Visible margins: women writers and the English ghost story Nickianne Moody	77
7 Nursing an image: the Sue Barton career novels Julia Hallam	91
8 Stories of love and death: reading and writing the fairy tale romance Stephen Benson	103
Section 3: Private power
9 Eating the evidence: women, power and food Sarah Sceats	117
10 Battling with the Angel: May Sinclair's powerful mothers Terry Phillips	128
11 Love hurts Philippa Gregory	139
12 Alice Thomas Ellis: Kinder, Kirche und Küche Peter Conradi	149

Section 4: Public power

13	Gender and trauma: HD and the First World War Trudi Tate	163
14	'Violent times': Janette Turner Hospital's art of memory and the history of the present Julian Cowley	173
15	Women and Mother Ireland Anne-Marie Fyfe	184
16	Sizing up: women, politics and parties Elizabeth Maslen	195
	Index	205