

The Management of Independent Learning

EDITED BY

JO TAIT
PETER KNIGHT

KOGAN
PAGE

Published in association with the Staff and Educational Development Association

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Notes on contributors	ix
1. A framework Jo Tait and Peter Knight	1
2. A quality graduate Lee Harvey and Selena Mason	13
3. Independent study, independent studies and 'core skills' in higher education Peter Knight	29
4. Do students value a flexible educational experience? Hazel Knox	38
5. The unexpected outcomes of critical professional learning Sue Bloxham and Mike Heathfield	47
6. Learning from experience: an individually negotiated learning route Peter Funnell and Sharon Goddard	57
7. Action-centred learning in industry Richard Carter, Frank Cooke and Bob Neal	65
8. Information technology and flexible learning Karen Valley, Chris Steeples and Patrick Hynes	74
9. Computers for teaching and learning Gordon Doughty	87
10. Recent research on student learning and the learning environment Noel Entwistle	97

11.	Developing modes of independent study in a professional school David Boud	113
12.	First steps towards the virtual university Richard Freeman, Suzanne Robertson and Michael Thorne	123
13.	Change in two academic cultures Jane Pearce, Ron Stewart, Phil Garrigan and Steve Ferguson	134
14.	Student group work: a comparative study William Johnston	141
15.	The development of a key competence Peter Knight and Jo Tait	150
	References	153
	Index	162