

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Preface	xv
Chapter 1: Introduction: multimodal texts and genres	1
1.0 Introduction	1
1.1 Multimodal texts and the resource integration principle	4
1.1.1 Resource integration and the transcription of printed cartoons	7
1.1.2 Multimodal transcription of cartoon narratives and the question of the metafunctions	16
1.1.3 Sources of meaning in multimodal texts	17
1.2 Cluster analysis and the transcription of static multimodal texts	21
1.2.1 Multimodal transcription and questions of genre	30
1.3 Textual properties of short printed cartoons	34
1.4 Printed advertisements and their exemplification of the metafunctions	38
1.4.1 Metafunctions in relation to genre	38
1.5 Web pages and their transcription	44
1.6 Film texts and their transcription	46
1.6.1 The soundtrack	51
1.7 Conclusion	54
Chapter 2: The printed page	57
2.0 Introduction	57
2.1 The printed page and its evolution	57
2.2 The resource integration principle in the scientific page	61
2.2.1 How can we study tables systematically?	64
2.2.2 How does the page communicate?	68
2.3 Science textbooks and multimodal meaning making	70
2.4 Visual, verbal and actional semiotic resources in a table	71
2.4.1 Visual and verbal resources	71
2.4.2 Thematic development of the page: hierarchies of textual periodicity	74
2.4.3 Actional semiotic resources	78
2.5 Blood under the microscope: multimodality in a photographic display	78
2.6 Integration of scientific photographs and verbal text	80
2.6.1 The textual metafunction	80

2.6.2	The ideational (experiential and logical) metafunctions	82
2.6.3	The interpersonal metafunction	89
2.7	The Italian texts: differences with respect to the Australian texts	91
2.7.1	Reading paths	91
2.7.2	The use of colour	92
2.8	Expertise and authority vs. comprehensibility and accessibility	93
2.8.1	Linguistic resources	96
2.8.2	Visual resources	99
2.9	Conclusion	102
Chapter 3 The web page		103
3.0	Introduction	103
3.1	Page or screen?	105
3.2	Decoupling of material support and information on the computer screen	109
3.3	The relationship between web page, website, web users and web genres	113
3.4	The home page	118
3.5	The Nasa Kids home page	120
3.6	Creating a hypertext pathway	126
3.7	The British Museum Children's COMPASS website	130
3.7.1	Children's COMPASS home page: description of multimodal objects	130
3.8	A multimodal hypertextual thematic formation: daily life in Asia	136
3.8.1	Thematic system analysis: preliminary observations and an example	136
3.8.2	Multimodal thematic system development along a hypertext pathway	140
3.9	The action potential of hypertext objects	146
3.9.1	Experiential meaning	147
3.9.2	Interpersonal meaning	148
3.9.3	Textual meaning	153
3.10	The virtual world of hypertext	156
3.11	Community or social network of users and practices?	161
3.12	The WWW as technological infrastructure and meaning-making resource	162
3.13	Conclusion	164
Chapter 4 Film texts and genres		165
4.0	Introduction	165
4.1	The Esquimo text: a macro-analytical approach to transcription	167
4.2	The Westpac text: an integrated approach to transcription	174
4.3	Etic and emic criteria in multimodal transcription	181
4.4	Phases, subphases and transitions	184
4.5	Column 1: Row number and time specification	186
4.6	Column 2: The visual frame	187
4.6.1	Visual frames and shots	187
4.6.2	Information structure: Given and New	189
4.6.3	Sequencing and relations of interdependency between shots	190

4.7	Column 3: The visual image	191
4.7.1	Specifying visual information	191
4.7.2	Perspective	195
4.7.3	Distance	195
4.7.4	Visual collocation	198
4.7.5	Visual salience	199
4.7.6	Colour	199
4.7.7	Coding orientation	200
4.7.8	Visual focus or gaze of participants	200
4.8	Column 4: Kinesic action	202
4.8.1	The meaning of movement	202
4.8.2	Interpersonal modification of movement	206
4.8.3	General observations on the notation of movement	209
4.9	Column 5: The soundtrack	209
4.9.1	Integrating auditory phenomena	209
4.9.2	Sound acts and sound events	210
4.9.3	Dialogic relations among sound events	211
4.9.4	A brief comment on the notation of the soundtrack	214
4.9.5	The rhythm of sound events	214
4.9.6	Accented rhythmic units	216
4.9.7	Rhythm groups	216
4.9.8	Degree of loudness	217
4.9.9	Duration of syllable, musical note, sound event	218
4.9.10	Tempo	219
4.9.11	Continuity and pausing	220
4.9.12	Dyadic relations among auditory voices: sequentiality, overlap, turntaking	220
4.9.13	Vocal register	221
4.10	Column 6: Metafunctional interpretation	222
4.10.1	Metafunctional notation in relation to Column 6	222
4.11	Display and depiction: two sides of the same semiotic coin in visual texts	223
4.11.1	Multimodal discourse analysis: the Mitsubishi Carisma advertisement revisited	223
4.11.2	From delimited optic array to visual text: the stratification of the visual sign	223
4.11.3	Transformations in the optic array: some examples from the Mitsubishi Carisma text	228
4.11.4	Visual transitivity frames and experiential meaning	230
4.11.5	Identity chains in visual semiosis	232
4.11.6	Dependency relations in the Mitsubishi Carisma text: implications for visual texts	234
4.11.7	Some sources of coherence in the Mitsubishi Carisma advertisement: Phase 1	239
4.11.8	Counter-expectancy and hypertext in the Mitsubishi Carisma advertisement	242
4.12	Conclusion: the shape of things to come	248

References	251
-------------------	------------

Appendices

Appendix I	I - XII
Appendix II	261

Index	265
--------------	------------

List of Insets relating to Keypoints

Inset 1: Context of situation and Context of culture	2
Inset 2: Text	3
Inset 3: The resource integration and meaning-compression principles	18-19
Inset 4: Metafunctions	22-23
Inset 5: Clusters and cluster analysis	31
Inset 6: Bakhtin's distinction between primary and secondary genres	43
Inset 7: Phases and their transcription	47
Inset 8: Intertextuality	55
Inset 9: Projection	101
Inset 10: The trajectory	116
Inset 11: Visual transitivity frames	122
Inset 12: Scalar levels	144
Inset 13: System and instance	172-173
Inset 14: Material object text and semiotic action text: two sides of the same textual coin	175-177
Inset 15: Gibson's optic array	192
Inset 16: Perspective in sound: Van Leeuwen on Figure, Ground and Field	212
Inset 17: Recontextualising social practices	213
Inset 18: Stratification	236-7
Inset 19: Negotiation	245-7

List of Figures

Figure 1.1: Codeployment of space and hand-arm movements in a car advertisement	5
Figure 1.2: The two Marmaduke cartoons	8
Figure 1.3: Cluster transcription of narrative event structure in a cartoon	9
Figure 1.4: A London Transport leaflet (top part: cover side; bottom part: reverse side)	25
Figure 1.5a: A macro-transcription of part of the LT leaflet	28
Figure 1.5b: A micro-transcription of the cover page of the LT leaflet	29
Figure 1.6a: Parts of a leaflet for the Chesapeake Bay tunnel-bridge complex	32
Figure 1.6b: Clusters making up the reverse cover of the leaflet	33
Figure 1.7: Lupo Alberto and attitudinal stance	36

Figure 1.8: The metafunctions and a bear hug from 'Boo'	40
Figure 1.9: A mini-genre analysis of the Boo Bear text	41
Figure 1.10: Intertextual relationships in websites: the role of frames	45
Figure 2.1: Leaf movements: in Darwin (top); in a modern textbook (bottom)	59
Figure 2.2: A typical multimodal page in Marx's Capital ; and the top part of an equivalent page in The Economist	62
Figure 2.3: An example of the use of the table in Marx	66
Figure 2.4: A typical use of charts in The Economist	67
Figure 2.5: An example of the use of vectors	68
Figure 2.6: Table and related verbal text pages 60 and 61 in Australian Biology	72
Figure 2.7: Blood under the microscope and related verbal text (pages 62-63)	73
Figure 2.8: Relation of elaboration: attribution between visual image and verbal label	87
Figure 2.9: Visual-verbal thematic formation; white corpuscles	88
Figure 2.10: 1982 Italian text	94
Figure 2.11: 1985 Italian text	95
Figure 2.12: The cline between ideational and interpersonal sourcing	97
Figure 2.13: Sequence of clauses	98
Figure 2.14: Sequence of clauses highlighting interpersonal negotiation	99
Figure 3.1: Web page genre schema	115
Figure 3.2: Nasa Kids Home Page: cluster analysis	121
Figure 3.3: Nasa Kids home page (focus on NasaToons object illuminated)	124
Figure 3.4: A Far Out Pioneer page	126
Figure 3.5: NasaToons menu of options page	128
Figure 3.6: The British Museum's Children's COMPASS home page: cluster analysis	131
Figure 3.7: The British Museum: Search the Museum page	132
Figure 3.8: Daily life in Asia page	133
Figure 3.9: The web page: Women sewing , a print	134
Figure 3.10: Covariate tie between verbal and visual semiotic modalities, creating a cross-modal thematic relation in an airline magazine text	139
Figure 3.11: Search subcluster before and during mouse rollover	150
Figure 3.12: Interpersonal meaning potential of linked objects; three simultaneous parameters	151
Figure 3.13: Objects that are clicked on to reveal a link	153
Figure 3.14: Layered structure of textual objects	155
Figures 4.1a and 4.1b: Transitivity frames in the Esquimo advertisement	168-9
Figure 4.2: A (revised) preliminary network for gaze in visual texts; primary delicacy only	171
Figure 4.3: Waves relating to the soundtrack in the first phase of the Westpac advertisement	183
Figure 4.4: Camera position relative to depicted world of image and visual kinaesthesia of viewer: main options	194
Figure 4.5: System network of basic options for gaze in video texts	196
Figure 4.6: Notational conventions used in the transcription of the soundtrack	215