

Manual of Archival Reprography

Edited by Lajos Körmendy

Compiled by

James A. Keene, Lajos Körmendy,
Ted F. Powell, Georges Weill

K·G·Saur

München · London · New York · Paris 1989

Contents

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS	8
1. BACKGROUND
1.1. Basic technical information	13
1.1.1. Silver-halide film	13
1.1.2. Diazo film	16
1.1.3. Vesicular film	17
1.1.4. Electrophotographic film	21
1.1.5. Electrostatic copy	23
2. MICROFORMS AND HARD COPIES
2.1. Microforms in general	27
2.2. Roll microfilm	28
2.2.1. 16mm roll film	32
2.2.2. 35mm roll film	33
2.2.3. 105mm roll film	34
2.2.4. Microfilm cartridge	35
2.3. Microfiche	36
2.4. Microfiche jacket	39
2.5. Sheet film	40
2.6. Aperture card	41
2.7. Micro-opaques	42
2.8. Hard copies in general	42
2.9. Enlargements and reductions	44
2.10. Print from film	44
2.11. Direct copy paper to paper images	45
3. APPLICATIONS
3.1. Security copying	47
3.2. Preservation copying	48
3.3. Aquisition copying	50
3.4. Disposal copying	53
3.5. Publication copying	55
3.6. Copying to order	56
3.7. Copying for administrative uses	57
4. REPROGRAPHIC POLICY
59
5. CHOICE, SELECTION AND PREPARATION OF RECORDS FOR COPYING
5.1. Choice and selection	61
5.2. Preparation of the records	62

6. COPY PRODUCTION AND EQUIPMENT

6.1.	Microform production	65
6.1.1.	Cameras	65
6.1.1.1.	Planetary cameras	67
6.1.1.2.	Rotary cameras	69
6.1.1.3.	Loading and unloading roll film	69
6.1.2.	Filming techniques and aids	70
6.1.2.1.	Handling records	70
6.1.2.2.	Using targets	71
6.1.2.3.	Planning exposures	77
6.1.2.4.	Achieving acceptable density and resolution	79
6.1.2.5.	Filming sequences	87
6.1.2.6.	Filming documents	90
6.1.2.7.	Special problems when filming documents	94
6.1.2.8.	Filming with a rotary camera	95
6.1.2.9.	Preparing an operator's report	95
6.1.2.10.	Filming retakes	98
6.1.3.	Negative processing	99
6.1.4.	Technical inspection and quality standards	102
6.1.4.1.	Negative inspection	104
6.1.4.2.	Retakes	108
6.1.5.	Microfilm duplication	129
6.1.5.1.	Processing procedure	129
6.1.5.2.	Print inspection	132
6.1.5.3.	Reformatting existing microfilm	134
6.2.	Making hard copy	134
6.2.1.	Photographic enlargement	135
6.2.2.	Print made with reader printer	136

7. ARCHIVAL PROCESSING OF THE COPIES

7.1.	Archival verification	139
7.2.	Description of the copies	140
7.3.	Retakes	144
7.4.	Retrieval systems	147
7.4.1.	Archival retrieval system	147
7.4.2.	Storage retrieval system	150

8. STORAGE AND PRESERVATION OF REPROGRAPHIC COPIES

8.1.	Storage	153
8.1.1.	The building	155
8.1.2.	The equipment	156
8.2.	Preservation	157

9. THE USE OF REPROGRAPHIC COPIES WITHIN ARCHIVES

9.1.	Reading room and reference service	161
9.2.	Equipment	165

10. SALE, EXCHANGE AND LOAN OF REPROGRAPHIC COPIES

10.1. The reprographic service	169
10.2. Exchanges and other forms of co-operation	173
10.2.1. The traditional exchange	173
10.2.2. Exchange in bulk	175
10.2.3. Other forms of co-operation	176
10.3. Loan of copies	177

11. LEGAL ASPECTS

11.1. Introduction: copies of documents and the law of evidence	181
11.2. The legal validity of hard copies made by reprographic processes	181
11.2.1. Certified copies issued by the archives	181
11.2.2. Copies by reprographic processes and their authentication	181
11.2.3. Reprographic copies provided by the archives	182
11.3. The legal validity of microforms	184
11.3.1. Historical background	184
11.3.2. The legal validity of microforms in industrialised countries	186
11.3.3. Disposal microfilming and legal validity	189
11.4. Access to copies and copyright	190
11.4.1. Control of access	190
11.4.2. Access to copies	191
11.4.3. Copyright	192

12. INTRODUCTION AND INSTALLATION OF REPROGRAPHICS INTO ARCHIVES

12.1. Introduction	195
12.2. Archival planning	195
12.3. Architectural and technical planning	198
12.4. Selection of reprographic systems and equipment	202
12.5. Staff qualifications and training	205
12.6. Costs	205
12.7. Organisation problems	206

13. SELECTIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY 209

14. INDEX 113