
BLOOM'S PERIOD STUDIES

The American Renaissance

Edited and with an introduction by
Harold Bloom
Sterling Professor of the Humanities
Yale University

CHELSEA HOUSE
PUBLISHERS

A Haight's Cross Communications Company

Philadelphia

Contents

Editor's Note	vii
Introduction	1
Harold Bloom
Herman Melville's "Moby Dick"	27
D.H. Lawrence
Method and Scope	41
F.O. Matthiessen
Shakespeare and Melville	51
Charles Olson
Nathaniel Hawthorne	77
Jorge Luis Borges
Introduction to Walden and Civil Disobedience	95
Sherman Paul
Whitman's Image of Voice: To the Tally of My Soul	127
Harold Bloom
The Curse of Kehama	147
Barbara Packer
"The Poet"	177
Julie Ellison
Hawthorne, Melville, and the Fiction of Prophecy	201
Richard Brodhead
The Literary Significance of the Unitarian Movement	241
Lawrence Buell
Introduction to Leaves of Grass	259
John Hollander
Margaret Fuller's Aesthetic Transcendentalism and Its Legacy	273
Kathy Kurtzman Lawrence

A Mourner Among the Children: Emily Dickinson's Early Religious Crisis Elizabeth Schmidt	297
Chronology	343
Contributors	347
Bibliography	351
Acknowledgments	353
Index	355