

Treasure Islands

Studies in Children's Literature

---

Mary Shine Thompson & Celia Keenan

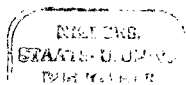

EDITORS

FOUR COURTS PRESS

Contents

Preface Celia Keenan	9
Introduction Mary Shine Thompson	11
Creating wildmen in one's own image: maroons, Darwin and the question of humanity Kate Hebblethwaite	24
This treasured island: Irish nationalist propaganda aimed at children and youth, 1910–16 Marnie Hay	33
'There is an isle in the western ocean': the Christian Brothers, Our Boys and Catholic/nationalist ideology Michael Flanagan	43
'The island come true': Peter Pan , Wild Cat Island, and the lure of the real Anna Bogen	53
New kinds of treasure: changes in island adventure in Britain and the USA in the mid-twentieth century Clive Barnes	62
Islands and I-lands in Enid Blyton David Rudd	72
The contemporary relevance of Enid Blyton (1897–1968) Jane O'Hanlon	79
'This island's mine ... which thou tak'st from me': textual 'ownership' in some recent young adult fiction Robert Dunbar	91

Australia, island's edge: the sea in Gary Crew's picture books Elizabeth Parsons	98
Gods, heroes, saints and villains of the Celtic other-world in modern retellings of old Irish tales Máire Uí Mhaicín	108
Treasured islands: the literary uses of the island setting in some Scottish children's novels Maureen A. Farrell	118
Contrasting cinematic versions of the conflict between tradition and modernity in Into the West and Whale Rider Celia Keenan	126
Bridging gaps, waters abating: C.S. Lewis' The Voyage of the Dawn Treader María del Carmen Pérez-Diez	136
(W)Rites of passage in Siobhán Parkinson's novel Four Kids, Three Cats, Two Cows and One Witch (Maybe) Patricia Kennon	143
Islands, Ireland and the changing state of writing for children A. J. Piesse	153
From Utopia to Terabithia: 'island' literature as Edenic fantasy Siobhán Parkinson	162
Traditional loyalties and liberal values in Eilís Dillon's The Island of Ghosts Nancy Watson	172
Imagining an island place: the island as setting in children's literature in Ireland Breege O'Brien	178
Daddies and telephones: the wild and the tame in children's literature Eiléan Ní Chuilleanáin	187
Growing up in a writer's head Cormac Ó Cuilleanáin	200
CONTRIBUTORS	209
INDEX	213