

Edited by Beverly Boutilier and Alison Prentice

---

Creating Historical Memory:
English-Canadian Women and the Work of History

UBCPress / Vancouver

Contents

Illustrations / ix

Acknowledgments / xi

- 1 Introduction: Locating Women in the Work of History / 3
Beverly Boutilier and Alison Prentice

Part 1: Community Building

- 2 Cultivating a Love of Canada through History: Agnes Maule Machar, 1837-1927 / 25
Dianne M. Hallman
- 3 Women's Rights and Duties: Sarah Anne Curzon and the Politics of Canadian History / 51
Beverly Boutilier
- 4 Ontario Women's Institutes and the Work of Local History / 75
Linda M. Ambrose

Part 2: Transitions

- 5 'Writing Teaches Us Our Mysteries': Women Religious Recording and Writing History / 101
Elizabeth Smyth
- 6 'I walk my own track in life & no mere male can bump me off it': Constance Lindsay Skinner and the Work of History / 129
Jean Barman

- 7 Isabel Skelton: Precursor to Canadian Cultural History / 164
Terry Crowley

Part 3: The Academy

- 8 Laying Siege to the History Professoriate / 197
Alison Prentice
- 9 A View from the Front Steps: Esther Clark Wright and the Making of a Maritime Historian / 233
Barry M. Moody
- 10 Kathleen Wood-Leigh: A Canadian in Cambridge / 254
Megan J. Davies and Colin M. Coates

Part 4: New Departures

- 11 Women's History: Founding a New Field / 273
Deborah Gorham

Contributors / 298

Index / 300