

Renaissance Drama

NEW SERIES 40

What Is Renaissance Drama?

Edited by Jeffrey Masten
and William N. West

Northwestern University Press

EVANSTON 2012

Contents

Submissions	vii
WILLIAM N. WEST Introduction	ix
KAREN NEWMAN Taking Stock	3
JONATHAN GOLDBERG Exclusive Of	9
BARBARA HODGDON AND W. B. WORTHEN Renaissance and/or Early Modern Drama and/or Theater and/or Performance: A Dialogue	19
HENRY S. TURNER Toward a New Theatricality?	29
BRUCE R. SMITH The Play's Not the Thing	37
S. P. CERASANO The Dream of a Perfect History	47
CHRISTOPHER BRAIDER Acting and Ontology in Molière	57
RICHARD BURT AND JULIAN YATES What's the Worst Thing You Can Do to Shak^x/espeare?	71
DAVID BEVINGTON Recent Trends in Editing of Renaissance Drama Anthologies	91
MARGARET GREER Authority and Theatrical Community: Early Modern Spanish Theater Manuscripts	101
MARY BLY Defining the Proper Members of the Renaissance Theatrical Community	113
BARBARA FUCHS No Field Is an Island: Postcolonial and Transnational Approaches to Early Modern Drama	125

MICHAEL WITMORE AND JONATHAN HOPE	"Après le déluge, More Criticism": Philology, Literary History, and Ancestral Reading in the Coming Posttranscription World	135
TIFFANY STERN	Renaissance Drama: Future Directions	151
KATHERINE IBBETT	Still No Precise Subject: The View from French	161
JANE TYLUS	The Work of Italian Theater	171
LEEDS BARROLL	William Shakespeare's Regnal Connections: Whose Court Is This Anyway?	185
JANE O. NEWMAN	Tragedy and Trauerspiel for the (Post-)Westphalian Age	197
JULIA REINHARD LUPTON	Hannah Arendt Strasse	209
Notes on Contributors		219