

The Plays of Martin Crimp

Making Theatre Strange

Vicky Angelaki

Lecturer in Drama at the Department of Drama and Theatre Arts, University of Birmingham, UK

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
1 Introduction: Reaching Beneath the Surface	1
Which cultural identity and tradition? British and European sensibilities	6
Crimp's theatre of 'making strange' and the phenomenology of defamiliarization	9
2 Urban Materialism and the Self as Commodity	18
City stories through a mystifying lens: Play with Repeats and No One Sees the Video	18
Urban consumerism and states of (non-)freedom: Dealing with Clair and The City	23
3 The Artist and the Industry of Mass Consumption	48
Artistic exposure: 'Stage Kiss', Four Imaginary Characters , Four Unwelcome Thoughts and The Misanthrope	48
Mechanisms of production and consumption: The Treatment and Attempts on Her Life	54
4 (Un)Spoken Violence and Domestic Power Relations	87
Repressed voices and the subversion of presence/absence: 'Little Romance', Three Attempted Acts , Definitely the Bahamas , Play House and Getting Attention	87
Combative language and echoes of silence: The Country	96
5 Urban Violence, Social Class, Political Transgressions	121
The war zone is everywhere: Advice to Iraqi Women , Cruel and Tender , Into the Little Hill and Untitled (Vaclav and Amelia)	121
Constraints of class, eruptions of angst: Fewer Emergencies	132
6 Translating There and Then into Here and Now	153
The playwright as translator: the importance of cultural mediation	153
Rhinoceros and contemporary audiences: issues and relevance	159
7 In Lieu of a Conclusion: Spectator as Character	177

Appendix: Details of original staging for plays, adaptations, translations and versions by Martin Crimp	187
Notes	200
Selected Critical Sources on Martin Crimp	223
Index	225