

---

Victorian Anthropology

George W. Stocking, Jr.

THE FREE PRESS

A Division of Macmillan, Inc.

New York

Maxwell Macmillan Canada

Toronto

Maxwell Macmillan International

New York Oxford Singapore Sydney

---

---

Contents

Preface	xi
Prologue: A Precipice in Time	1
1. The Idea of Civilization Before the Crystal Palace (1750-1850)	8
The Progress of Civilization in the Enlightenment	10
The History of Culture in Germany	20
The Science of Progress in France	25
The Problem of Civilization in England	30
Civilization as an Issue of Attitude and Method	36
Biblical Anthropology and the Vestiges of Creation	41
2. Ethnology on the Eve of Evolution (1830-1858)	46
James Cowles Prichard and the Ethnological Problem	48
From Popular Antiquities to Folklore	53
Linguistic Paleontology: The Aryans as Primitive Men	56
Anglo-Saxonism, Polygenism, and Physical Anthropology	62
The Revolution in Human Time	69
The Crisis of Prichardian Ethnology	74

Contents

3.	Travelers and Savages: The Data of Victorian Ethnology (1830–1858)	78
	The Benevolent Colonial Despot as Ethnographer	81
	A Methodist Missionary in Cannibal Feejee	87
	The Gentleman Traveler as Social Darwinist	92
	Primitivism, Polygenism, and Natural Selection	96
	Ethnographic Data, Racial Attitudes, and Ethnological Theory	102
4.	The History of Civilization Before the Origin of Species (1851–1858)	110
	The Triumph of the Laws of Intellect over the Laws of Nature	112
	Retracing Historically the Social Progress of the Aryan Race	117
	Making the Associationist Tradition Evolutionary	128
	Redefining the Basis of Human Psychic Unity	137
5.	The Darwinian Revolution and the Evolution of Human Culture (1858–1871)	144
	Filling the Gap in the Fossil Record	146
	Tracing Up the Origin of Civilization	150
	The Natural Development of Spiritual Culture	156
	The “Comparative Method” and the Antiquity of Man	164
	Evolutionary Argument and Polemical Context	169
	Continuity and Disjuncture in Classical Evolutionism	179
6.	Victorian Cultural Ideology and the Image of Savagery (1780–1870)	186
	Animistic Religion and the Progress of Human Reason	188
	Primitive Promiscuity and the Evolution of Marriage	197
	Savagery and Civilization in Early Victorian England	208
	Reason, Instinct, and the Problem of Moral Progress	219
	A Cosmic Genealogy for Middle-Class Civilization	228
	Colonial Otherness and Evolutionary Theory	233

Contents

7. Evolutionary Ideas and Anthropological Institutions (1835–1890)	238
The Protection of Aborigines and the Advancement of Ethnology	240
The Emergence of Anthropology as an Alternative to Ethnology	245
The Darwinian Resistance to “Anthropology”	248
Organizational Struggle and Institutional Compromise	254
The Anthropology of the Anthropological Institute	257
The Limits of Institutionalization in Victorian Anthropology	262
The Victorian Anthropological Compromise	269
 Epilogue: The Extinction of Paleolithic Man	 274
 A Prospective Retrospect: The Historical Significance of Victorian Anthropology (1880–1980)	 284
The Anthropological Reputation of Victorian Anthropology	286
The Historical Reputations of Victorian Anthropologists	294
Classical Evolutionism and the Idea of Culture	302
Classical Evolutionism and Disciplinary Discourse	314
The Ambiguous Heritage of Evolutionary Anthropology	324
 Notes	 331
 A Note on Manuscript Sources	 356
 References Cited	 357
 Index	 411