

Imperial Identities:
Stereotyping, prejudice and race
in colonial Algeria

---

PATRICIA M.E. LORCIN

I.B. Tauris Publishers
LONDON · NEW YORK

Contents

---

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	i
PART I Algeria 1830–1870	15
1 The conquest: Kabyles and Arabs in warfare	17
2 Security and reconnaissance part 1: the elaboration and confirmation of categories	35
3 Security and reconnaissance part 2: Islam and society	53
4 The ‘Royaume Arabe’ (1860–1870)	76
PART II Social sciences and military men	97
5 The Ecole Polytechnique, Saint-Simonianism and the army	99
6 Race and scholarship in Algeria: the impact of the military	118
7 Scholarly societies in France: the Kabyle Myth as a racial paradigm	146
PART III Algeria 1871–1900: The eclipse of the Kabyle Myth	167
8 Civilian rule	171
9 Algeria, the melting-pot of the Mediterranean: the impact of Louis Bertrand	196

Contents

	PART IV The legacy	215
IO	Persistent stereotypes and resultant policies	217
	PART V	239
II	Conclusion	241
	Notes to chapters	255
	APPENDIX
	Biographical sketches	296
	Bibliographical note	310
	Index	315