

Internet Digital Libraries

The International Dimension

Jack Kessler

Preface

Introduction

Chapter 1: The Internet

Chapter 2: The

Chapter 3: The

Chapter 4: The

Chapter 5: The

Chapter 6: The

Chapter 7: The

Chapter 8: The

Chapter 9: The

Chapter 10: The

Chapter 11: The

Chapter 12: The

Chapter 13: The

Chapter 14: The

Artech House
Boston • London

Contents

Preface ix

Introduction xi

Part I: Setting the Stage 1

Chapter 1

The Internet goes public—a new story, online digital information 3

- 1.1* From the internet testbed to digital commerce 3
- 1.2* The French Minitel and digits for people—community networking 5
- 1.3* The search for paradigms for general public access 7

Chapter 2

Digitization in libraries—an old story, information and libraries 11

- 2.1* Libraries, as places for public access to and use of information 11
- 2.2* Library service as a paradigm for information 13
- 2.3* The disadvantages and advantages of a paradigm that has a history 14

Chapter 3

Incunabula—the development of digital libraries in the United States 17

- 3.1* Origins and pedigrees 19
- 3.2* The 1970s in the United States 20
- 3.3* The 1980s in the United States 21
- 3.4* The 1990s in the United States 22
- 3.5* Roots 24
 - 3.5.1* Bibliographic records versus fulltext 24
 - 3.5.2* Multimedia 27
- 3.6* Summary 28
- 3.7* Implications 29

Part II:
Specifics—national 33

Chapter 4

France—flexible centralization 37

4.1 Some common themes in the French case 56

Chapter 5

Singapore—rigid centralization 59

5.1 Summary 63

Chapter 6

China—Chinese uniqueness 67

Chapter 7

India—Asia's awakening giant 79

7.1 Summary 83

Chapter 8

Australia—the antipodes, and the sheer reach of online digital information 85

Chapter 9

Thailand—the blending of worlds, third and other 93

Chapter 10

The United Kingdom—crowded pipes 99

Chapter 11

Hungary—phenomenon of the stranger 107

Chapter 12

Japan—investing versus consuming 111

Chapter 13

Indonesia—the rest of Asia and the world 119

13.1 Summary 132

Chapter 14

National government—the NSF digital libraries projects, in the United States 135

Part III: Specifics—international 143

Chapter 15

Language 145

Chapter 16

Politics and political structures 153

Chapter 17

Technical standards 161

17.1 Summary 169

Chapter 18

Business 171

Chapter 19

International organizations 177

19.1 Summary 182

Part IV: Generalities 185

Chapter 20

Media and messages—is the pipe neutral? 187

Chapter 21

Libraries and information—warehouses and services? 191

21.1 A crisis of identity for libraries 191

21.2 International developments 194

Chapter 22

Human users—fitting something new in—wine and bottles,
chickens and eggs 199

22.1 The phenomenon of the un-interested user 200

22.2 Implementation strategies 200

22.3 Wine and bottles,
chickens and eggs 202

22.4 Digital libraries and the problem of designing for change 203

Appendix A

French libraries online 205

A.1 MINITEL kiosk libraries 205

A.2 MINITEL “V23” direct-dial
libraries 207

A.3 Telnet (that is, from the Internet) 211

Appendix B

Electronic conferences 213

Appendix C

A small statistical “essai” 221

Appendix D

Digital libraries 225

Glossary 231

Annotated bibliography and resource list 241

Digital—the meaning 241

Classics 241

Recent titles: some very technical, some not 243

Libraries—the meaning 243

Classics 243

Recent work 244

- Looming Issues* 244
- International librarianship 244
- The Internet 245
 - Classics* 245
 - Recent Work* 246
- Libraries now: reaching new roles 246
- Psychology and culture 247
- Money 248
- International: a literature is beginning to build 248

- Synthesis 248
 - Clifford Lynch* 249
 - Pierre Lévy* 249
 - James Fallows* 250

About the author 251

Index 253