

European Historiography of Technology

Proceedings from the TISC-Conference in Roskilde

Edited by Dan Ch. Christensen

ODENSE UNIVERSITY PRESS 1993

Contents

Acknowledgements	7
Editors Introduction	9
Akos Paulinyi : Machine Tools in the Transfer Policy of the Prussian 'Gewerbeförderung' (1820s-1840s)	17
John R. Harris : Sources for the Study of Industrial Espionage by Eighteenth Century France	30
Frank Allan Rasmussen : The Royal Danish-Norwegian Dockyard: Innovation, Espionage and Centre of Technology	41
Dick van Lente : The Critique of Industrial Technology in the Netherlands and other Western Countries in the Nineteenth Century	55
Helge Kragh : Transatlantic Technology Transfer: The Reception and early Use of the Telephone in USA and Europe	68
Hans Hedal : Early Rural Electrification in Denmark – a Reaction from People outside the Town Establishment	91
Klaus Mauersberger : The Development of German Engineering Education in the Nineteenth Century – a Comparison with Great Britain and France	111
G. Verbong : The Tension between Theory and Practice – Dutch Engineering Education in the Nineteenth Century	125
Michael F. Wagner : Danish Polytechnical Education between Handicraft and Science	146
Henrik Harnow : The Danish Engineer in Transition – The Reformation of Danish Engineering Education c. 1890-1933	164

Martyn Bakker: Farmers and Agrarian Industries in the 19th Century: Who's the Boss? 175

Dan Ch.Christensen: Danish Modernization Strategies – from above or below? 189

Peter Kemp: Ethics of Technology: The Irreplaceable 204

Kristine Bruland: Comparative Studies in European History of Technology 226

Contributors 235

Index 240