

Frank Perlin

The Invisible City

Monetary, Administrative and Popular
Infrastructures in Asia and Europe,
1500–1900

VARIORUM

CONTENTS

LIST OF MAP, APPENDICES & TABLES	vii
PREFACE & ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	ix
TRACES OF THE ANCIENT «CITY» an introduction	1
STATE FORMATION RECONSIDERED an essay on method and on the generation of authority and popular institutions	15
1. Preamble . . .	15
2. Introduction: State of the Historiography . . .	18
3. System versus Process: A Necessary Distinction . . .	28
4. Administrative Order and its Unofficial Infrastructures . . .	36
a. household administrations . . .	36
b. accounting and paper . . .	40
c. the «library» of categories and techniques . . .	42
d. measurement systems and their organisational contexts . . .	46
e. rights and properties . . .	51
5. Popular Organisation and Counter-Ideologies . . .	58
6. The Field of Relevance . . .	74
7. Conclusions . . .	82
a. the institutional «city» . . .	82
b. the continuity issue . . .	85
THE PARTS OF THE MACHINE	91
division of labour in European and South Asian coin manufacture before mechanisation
1. The Problem . . .	91
2. Combinations of the Production Line . . .	94
3. Divisions of Time and Labour . . .	117
4. Conclusion . . .	125
MONEY-USE IN LATE PRECOLONIAL SOUTH ASIA and the world trade in currency media	131
1. Introduction . . .	131
2. The Problem . . .	134

3. International Production and Supply, and Imports into South Asia . . .	137
4. The Structure of Demand . . .	150
a. the eighteenth century in the longer historical context . . .	150
b. substitutions of copper, cowries and silver in the seventeenth century . . .	152
c. a provisional chronology of currency production and circulation in the Western Deccan . . .	162
d. an economy of intensive circulation . . .	178
e. credit, finance and the supply of money . . .	187
f. signs and symbols: a typology and language of uses and productions . . .	209
5. Conclusion: Construction of the «City» . . .	221
Map, Appendices & Tables	229
FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS AND BUSINESS PRACTICES across the Euro-Asian interface: comparative and structural considerations, 1500-1900	283
1. Preface . . .	283
2. General Perspectives and Methodological Issues . . .	284
3. The Evidence: Institutions, Instruments, Networks and Complementarities . . .	290
I. South Asia
a. the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries . . .	291
b. the eighteenth century . . .	298
II. China
a. the problem - what can be said about early modern finance . . .	306
b. rethinking the late-nineteenth and early twentieth centuries . . .	317
4. Conclusions. Business Practice and the Euro-Asian Interface . . .	326
A Note on the Title . . .	337
MONETARY REVOLUTION AND SOCIETAL CHANGE in late medieval and early modern times	339
1. The Field . . .	339
2. Structural Considerations . . .	343
3. The Developmental Question . . .	349
APPENDIX: TRANSCRIPTIONAL & DATING CONVENTIONS	359
AUTHORS' INDEX	361